HOW THE DAY WAS OBSERVED

The Undines Celebrate Th: Glorious Fourth at Hecla Park.

FIVE THOUSAND PEOPLE ATTEND.

A Heavy Rain Storm Plays Havoc With the Ladies' Dresses And Also Prevents the Great Balloon Ascension. Display of Fire Works.

Saturday, the great Fourth was celebrated in glorious style throughout the entire land. Almost every city, town and village put on a gala attire and paid due tribute to the event which the day will ever commemorate.

Bellefonte was no exception and her citizens spared neither trouble nor expense to make the day a complete success. That they accomplished their purpose goes without saying.

It was the Undines' day. They celebrated it at Hecla park in a way never to be forgotten. The festivities commenced with the first break of day and continued until shortly before midnight when the last special train had carried everybody home, tired but happy.

The crowd that flocked to that beautiful grove along the line of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, was indeed a representative one. There were people there of every calling but all mingled with one another and had a good royal time. Every body was in an exceptionally good humor, and although it was push and shove to get along, they took things just as they came and pushed with the rest. It was a bad day for corns and bunions but those who had their feet tramped on, turned around and tramped on somebody else's and so it went on all day long.

There were fully 5,000 people on the grounds during the day. About 4,000 of these were conveyed to the park over the Central Railroad and the balance came in all sorts of vehicles and not a few walked

The Undines had everything arranged perfectly to accommodate the immense throng of people. Each visitor was looked after in a way that made him feel welcome during the whole time he was on the grounds. There was plenty to eat and drink and no one was compelled to go hungry. The entertainment committee was exerted to its utmost but it fully met the demands of the people and did its work well and in a manner that elicited many flattering comments from the guests.

The dancing platform presented an animated scene at all times and the many dancers were profuse in their praises of the excellent music as furnished by the Undine Orchestra.

During the day a heavy rainstorm came up but even this could not dampen the ardor of the picnicers. It did, however, create a panic among the wearers of white dresses and colored waists and bonnets. The rain came on so sudden that the women had to run. The coloring in their dresses commenced to run too, and by the time the rain had stopped the majority of the once beautiful gowns were sights such as are only seen once in a lifetime. But then the women didn't seem to care and of course the men didn't and so every body pitched in and festivities commenced again as if nothing had happened. But the scene resembled that of a Turkish Bazaar more than a American picnic as every thing was striped with every color imaginable.

Owing to the hard rain it was impossible to have the ballom ascension which was a great disappointment to everybody. "Prince Leo" was on the ground with his balloon ready to go up but the atmosphere being so heavy he was unable to do so. This was the only advertised feature of the program that was not carried out.

Governor Hastings delivered an address in the afternoon which was listened to by a large crowd of people. The Governor was at one time a member and later the president of the Undine Fire company, and he dwelt considerable from that and the present time in the advantages possessed by the firemen. His address was frequently applauded and was indeed a master piece of oratory.

In the evening the guests were treated to a magnificent pyrotechnical display which was without exception the finest ever seen in Centre county.

Special trains were made up and long before midnight the last person had left grounds and all united in pronouncing it the greatest day in their lives.

SCHOOL BOARD NEWS.

A Busy Session of the Directors Held on Tuesday Evening.

At a special meeting of the School Board last night the Board levied the taxes for the present school year and elected the teachers.

Taxes were laid on the same basis as last year.

The entire corps of teachers was re-elected, there being no opposition to any one, except Professor Ammerman and Miss Curry. To both of these there was considerable opposition.

The Board also created a new school of the intermediate grade, to which Miss Fannie Elmore was elected. The school was made necessary by reason of the crowded condition of the Primary and Intermediate schools, and in view of the operation of the compulsory school law.

The teachers are as follows:

BRICK BUILDING—Principal, D. O. Etters; S. L. Ammerman, A. R. Rutt, Ella Levy, R. B. Mattern, Carrie A. Weaver, B. A. Curry, Rose J. Fox and Bella K. Rankin.

STONE BUILDING—John Harrison, Frances K. Hewes, Mildred Smith, Anna McCaffery, J. Longacre, Elizabeth Dorworth, Jennie Strickland and Frances Elmore.

Was It an Earthquake?

Considerable excitement was caused in this city about 9.30 o'clock Wednesday by two distinct shocks which made the earth tremble for fully fifty seconds. What the shock can be attributed to is a mystery unless it were an earthquake, although the latter is hardly possible. It, however, caused quite a scare to a number of people and did not pass off without some slight damage.

It was just about 9.30 o'clock this morning when the shock was felt. S. H. Williams has a corps of painters at work on the home of Col. W. F. Reeder, on the corner of Allegheny and Curtin streets, and there the disturbance was particularly noticed. Harry Williams was on the top rung of a fifteen-foot ladder and he was thrown to the ground, and a can of paint upset by the violent swaying of the house caused by the shock. The whole earth trembled, causing houses to quiver, windows to rattle, and in several places pictures were thrown from the walls to the floor.

The shock was also keenly felt at the residence of John Noll on North Allegheny street. Mrs. Noll was in bed sick and the whole house was so badly shaken up that the bed rocked for fully half a minute. In one or two other places the plaster was loosened from the walls and ceilings and bricks knocked off the tops of the chimneys. The people living in the northern part of the city were badly frightened for a few moments, but no personal injury resulted.

It was the general supposition that the shock might have been caused by the blasting at the lime kilns, but inquiry developed the fact that there was no blasting being done at that hour.

WITH OUR BUSY COUNCILMEN

What They Did at their Regular Meeting on Monday Evening.

WERE IN SESSION OVER TWO HOURS

Many Bills Acted Upon and Other Business Transacted—Warm Weather Could Not Stop "The Borough Dads" After They Once got Down to Business.

Council convened in regular session on Monday evening with president Brockerhoff and members Gerberich, Williams, Valentine, Shaffer and Lowery in attendance.

The first business of the evening was the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Clerk Mitchell. They were adopted as read.

Edward Brown Jr., and Frank Waltz on behalf of the Undine Fire Company, appeared before council and asked privilege to put a ditch on High Street between the First National Bank and the Brockerhoff House, said ditch to be used for the balloon ascension on Wednesday. They also asked permission to have a sham battle on the Court House Diamond. This sham battle was originally intended to be fought at Hecla Park on the Fourth but was postponed by the rain storms.

The street commitee through Chairman Williams reported that the recent heavy rains has left the streets in a very bad condition. Pine Street from the summit has been repaired and many sewers on different streets have been cleaned out and others will soon be. The pavement in front of the residence of Mrs. John Rankin on Penn Street is in a very bad condition and must be repaired at once. The stone crossing on Lamb Street near the McGinley residence recently complained of, has been removed. West Linn Street is in a poor condition and the committee asked privilege to repair the same.

In regard to the crossing on Spring St. between Garman's and the estate of T. R. Reynolds, the committee reported that owing to the absence of member Lowery of the street committee no contract with Mr. Cunningham had been made. As to Allegheny Street crossing between Parrish's drug store and Achenbach's Bakery, the committee stated that it didn't see its way through to build the crossing to the required width owing to the trees and other obstacles being in the way, and committee said it considered that it had no right to remove the trees.

Borough Solicitor Dale appeared before the council and stated that Mrs. Fennel who lives near the Glass Works has been assessed and paid taxes on two properties when she only owned one. Mr. Dale asked that council ratify certificate of allowance made out by the county commissioners.

The water committee through Chairman Gerberich reported repairs made to Boiler No. 1 at the water works. The pumps have been running the usual number of hours per day. There are 6 fire plugs needing repairs. The resevoir and spring both leak and should be repaired. The committee complained of cows running at large at night and entering the yard at the water works and destroying the grass and flowers.

* * * * * *

Clerk Mitchell reported $12 collected from Market Clerk Thomas Shaughensy.

The request of the Undine fire company in regard to the ditch and sham battle was granted upon motion of Mr. Lowery.

In regard to the Mrs. Fennel property, the question was referred to the Finance committee for adjustment.

As to the pavement on Penn Street in front of the Mrs. John Rankin property, the matter was referred to the street committee to consult with the Borough solicitor in regard to having it repaired.

Mr. Gerberich moved that the street committee be empowered to make the necessary repairs to West Linn Street so that the water can drain off without tearing away the street.

The water committee was instructed to repair the six water plugs mentioned at once.

The water committee was empowered to repair the wall around the spring as they thought best.

After moving that orders be drawn for the payment of the following bills, council adjourned.

"Howard Normal."

Length of term eight weeks number of students 34. First, Howard is one of the most beautiful little towns in Central Pennsylvania, situated along the B. E. V. R. R. in the futile valley of Bald Eagle, it being the desire of the people here to keep pace with the rapid progress in the educational. March they induced Prof. King of Renovo to open a summer normal and the move met with success to the extent that it soon became evident that it would be necessary to secure assistance so Prof. King accordingly put himself in communication with Prof. Theo. Hesson of Littles Town Adams Co., and a graduate of Franklin and Marshall college which resulted in the opening of the term on Tuesday April 27. The following branches were taught in addition to the course school branches Latin, Physical Geography, American literature, Algebra, Book keeping and civil government. During the term two lectures were given, one by Prof. W. W. Kelchner of Williamsport on the life of Dr. Holmes which was very good, but it remained for D. F. Fortney of Bellefonte to make a speech or give a talk rather that appealed to the soul of the teacher urging him to do his full duty in his profession having the welfare of the pupils intrusted to his care at heart rather than the paltry salary of the teacher. We are all sorry that the term is over. It has been mentioned that Prof. Hesson would return the 28 of July if the size of the school would be such as to defray his expenses and allow him a little extra. In justice to Prof. F. H. King, we give this brief sketch of his life as a teacher. Twelve years experience—began as a district teacher—later elected supervising principal of Alba School Bradford Co. By a marked degree of interest and success in his work, he was called to Renovo to take charge of the North Side building which position he held for three years after which he came to Howard Centre Co., had charge of Howard schools for one year and summer Normal. The schools of Howard were in chaotic state but his efforts brought them to an unprecedented [illegible] and a new course of work thoroughly systematized and graded the school. His work has always been marked by the earnest untiring efforts, character irreproachable congenial disposition tact and skill in managing and disciplinary, he was educated in Mansfield S. N. S. Canton High school, also Towanda Collegiate Institute, an ardent institute worker fully up to the times are all economic educational needs and methods. Both he and Prof. Hesson take with them our best wishes. "Laurel"

Congressional Conference.

The Twenty-eighth Congressional District Conference was held at DuBois on Wednesday and renominated W. C. Arnold by acclamation for Congress. The conference was harmonious from beginning to end and the best of feeling prevailed.

The conferees met in the parlors of the Commercial hotel. A. A. Clearwater of Wilcox presided over the convention, and Hard P. Harris of this city and H. H. Porterfiled of Foxburg were secretaries. The conferees were: Clarion, M. J. McAteer of New Bethlehem; Elk, J. C. Koch of St. Marys, A. A. Clearwater of Wilcox, J. F. Wrathall of Johnsonburg; Centre W. L. Malin, H. P. Harris, D. M. Glenn of Bellefonte; Forest, C. A. Randall, A. B. Kelley, Wm. Snearburg of Tionesta; Clearfield, H. McCullough of DuBois, C. E. Patton of Curwensville and T. L. Snyder of Covington township.

Col. W. F. Reeder withdrew and and placed the name of W. C. Arnold in nomination, which was done by acclamation amidst the greatest enthusiasm.

The Bellefonte conferees returned home on Wednesday evening, tired after the long journey of almost three hundred miles.

STATE DENTISTS IN SESSION

They Commence Their Three Days' Meeting in This City on Tuesday

PRESIDENT KIRK'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

A Lengthy Review Which is Worthy of Careful Perusal—Points on The Framing of The New State Dental Law—Governor Hastings welcomes The Visitors.

The twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society commenced in this city today and will continue over Thursday. The first session was opened at 11 o'clock this morning with President, Dr. E. C. Kirk in the chair. Rev. J. W. Rue invoked the Divine blessing after which Governor Hastings delivered the address of welcome In behalf of the citizens of Bellefonte, the Governor extended a hearty welcome to the visiting dentists. He portrayed the many advantages to be found in our city and concluded his address by inviting the members of the society to a reception at his home this evening. Dr. Kirk responded to the welcome in a brief but well worded address and then the session got down to work.

The principle feature of the morning's program was the annual address of the president, Dr. Kirk, who is Dean of the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania. His address was as follows:

"MEMBERS OF THE PENNA. DENTAL SOCIETY AND THEIR GUESTS:

"In accordance with established custom it becomes my privilege to address you upon the general nature of the business that is to occupy your attention during the present annual meeting of our State Society, to review briefly some of the more important advances of the past year and indicate, if possible, the lines along which we may most profitably proceed with respect to our improvement as individuals and as a profession. It may not be amiss before taking up the more concrete matters, to briefly consider the circumstances which bring us together.

"While we may not hope to formulate a definition that will fully express all the meaning contained in the word 'man,' we may consider certain of his attributes, which, when the final definition of him is made, will form a necessary part of that definition. We may say, then, that man is a gregarious animal, that is to say, from certain inherent, instinctive motives he seeks association with individuals of his own kind. But you may assert, and with perfect propriety, that this attribute alone does not distinguish him from a majority of the lower orders of animals. It is not, however, his gregarious instinct per se which distinguishes man from the brute creation, but the motives which govern him in his social relations and which manifest their character in his attitude towards his fellows; it is the spirit of altruism dominating the instinct of self-preservation, the struggle for the existence of others rather than the mere struggle for existence which characterizes the social relationships and organizations of highly developed mankind and separates him from the gregarious brutes.

"Whether we believe that man has ascended from a lower order of animals or decended from the angels need not affect our recognition of the fact that as time has gone on the tendency of mankind has been toward improvement, not only in material things but in intellectual and moral lines as well. Into his associations for mutual protection and defense has crept the spirit of mutual improvement and helpfulness toward better and happier living.

"Let us now see what applications of these general considerations may be properly made to the functions of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society. We are associated together, as I take it, for two distinct though closely related objects, viz: first, for mutual improvement, and second, for mutual protection; but let us so understand the meaning and application of these terms that we do not intentionally or unconsciously set up a standard of exclusiveness in regard to either of them. It is true that we have adopted for our guidance a code of ethics, a code which defines what shall be our course of professional action with respect not only to our colleagues but also to the members of the community in which we live, and we believe that the code expresses with sufficient clearness the highest ethical standard attainable. Where we have apparently fallen short on occasion has been in the limitations we have placed upon its application. To do unto others as we would that they should do to us carries with it no limitations whatever so far as its application is concerned. 'Others' means not only the members of this Society but all men, and in our treatment of those who have not subscribed to the letter of the code we are as morally bound to be governed by its principle of action as in our relations with those who have come under its provisions.

"It is the attitude of exclusiveness in a matter of ethics which creates resentment toward it and develops a holier-than-thou! sentiment which renders its professors obnoxious to those who feel, even though they may not be able to express, the inequity of such a position.

"Therefore it would seem to be proper that the policy of this Society should be inclusive in character rather than exclusive. By this is not meant that there should in any degree be laxity in respect to the literal interpretation of the code, but that by all possible means the organization as an organization, and its individual members as well, should exert an educational effect and put forth a definite effort to help to a higher plane of professional life those who, from weakness, ignorance or force of superior temptation, have departed from recognized professional ethical standards. This should be done in a spirit of brotherly love and kindness, with an earnest desire to do good to a colleague. It can never be done by placing the erring ones under a ban and assuming an attitude of righteous superiority toward them.

"After the ethical questions, your professional life, perhaps the most important topic for our consideration is that of our educational equipment and the legislative control of our educational standards by the state.

"No previous period in our history has shown such activity in educational progress as the past decade. Several factors have contributed to that end: first, the intense interest manifested in the investigation of all departments of our specialty has resulted in the acquisition of an immense mass of knowledge that has had its natural effect in modifying older methods of practice and in many instances the introduction of methods wholly new. As a consequence our educational institutions are stimulated to greater activity in furnishing a professional equipment to their graduates which will enable them to practice their profession in harmony with the advance in knowledge which is taking place.

"There is the organized work of the colleges represented in the National Association of Dental Faculties and more recently that of the National School of Dental Technics, which together represent a motive power for improvement in dental

IT WILL BE INVESTIGATED

Governor Hastings Sends a Letter To Three Prominent Mine Inspectors.

THEY WILL MEET SOON AT PITTSTON

Official Action to Be Taken on The Recent Horror in The Mines—It Will Be Some Time Yet Until The Bodies of The Entombed Men Will Be Recovered.

Harrisburg, July 2.—Governor Hastings has addressed a letter to three prominent mine inspectors, Edward Roderick, of Stockton; William Stein, of Shenadoah and Edward Brannon of Shamokin, as follows:

Gentlemen:—The newspapers of the last few days have been filled with accounts of the terrible accident occurring last Sunday at the Twin Shaft mine, at Pittston, causing a heavy loss of life.

It is a public duty to fully investigate catastrophes of this character, in order that the causes which produce such loss of life may be fully determined and the inquiry as to whether such casualties may be prevented fully considered and decided. There is no provision of law by which the executive department is authorized to call upon you in your official capacity to go upon the ground and conduct such an investigation as might furnish a solution to the two inquiries just referred to. I would however request that you should meet at Pittston at the earliest possible date, and, as persons qualified to speak from expert knowledge, that you should jointly investigate the slope in which the accident occurred, hear the story of those who are cognizant of the condition of the mine prior to the accident and all of the facts surrounding the falling of the rock and coal and, after having done so, report to me in writing, at the earliest possible moment, first, what in your opinion was the cause of the accident referred to; second, whether in your opinion any precaution was taken which would have tended to prevent its happening, and third what legislation would in your judgement, secure to the miners of the state, immunity from this class of risk.

It is proper that I should say to you that I ask for this information solely for the public good, and the duty that I ask you to perform is purely that of a volunteer expert, willing to contribute to the public service for the benefit of his technical knowledge of mining and mining enterprises. I regret exceedingly to add that for this duty there is no fund upon which we may draw for the purpose of meeting your individual expenses.

I request that you meet for the purpose indicated at the Twin Shaft mine on Monday, July 6, at 12 o'clock noon.

London's Electrical Supply.

Compared with other large towns, London is easily at the head for the magnitude of its electrical supply. Paris, for instance, has only an equivalent of about 500,000 eight candle power lamps as compared with the 1,200,000 lamps in London.

Manchester and Liverpool have respectively about 92,000 and 54,000, Glasgow 70,000, Edinburg 43, 00, Dublin 16,000, and Cardiff 9,000. Of the total capital expended in the whole of the United Kingdom for supplying electricity London has spent more than one-half.—Chambers' Journal.

Pensions Granted.

Washington, June 25.—Pension certificates of date of June 12, 1896, have been issued as follows: Pennsylvania—

Original—Henry Fisher, deceased, Middletown, Dauphin.

Restoration and Re-issue—Jonathan Miller deceased, Columbia, Lancaster.

Increase—Abiel B. Brown, Greensburg, David W. Crider, York.

Original Widows, ect.—William Hornbaker, father, Mercersburg; Mary C. Paige, Mifflinburg; Sarah J. Miller, Columbia, Lancaster.

A Righteous Discharge.

Chester, Pa., July 2.—Charles Blackburn, a private in Company B, Sixth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, has been dishonorably discharged for tearing down the American flag. Col. P. M. Washabaugh signed the discharge to-day. The act was committed on the night of McKinley's nomination during a public demonstration. Blackburn was roughly handled by the militia at the time.

Mr. Boastful—I wonder how it would seem if I could have all the money I have given to charity piled on a plate before me?

Mrs. Boastful—I think you could still distinguish the plate.

Rugby—"Our landlady is one of the most expert calculators in town."

Wilkins—"Is she?"

Rugby—"Yep. We had beans for dinner to-day and she ask me how many I would have."

A Grand Success

The concert given in the Presbyterian chapel on Friday evening for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. was a complete success in every particular. So well had it been advertised that long before the concert commenced the chapel was crowded. Even the galleries were filled and not a few were compelled to stand.

The program as presented was one of the finest of its kind ever given in Bellefonte. It was opened with an instrumental trio, Messrs. Gerhart and Katz with mandolins, and Mr Walkey with guitar. The selection rendered was exceedingly pretty and called forth an enchore, which was responded to. Messrs. Johnson, Harris, Blanchard and Waddell then sang "When Evening Twilight," which was well received by the audience. Mr. Hawley of Williamsport then recited several pieces, which were greatly appreciated and warmly applauded.

A solo, entitled "Amid the Flowers I Wandered," by Helmund, and "Thou Art the Noblest of Them All," was sung by Mrs. Burnett, who was compelled to respond with an encore.

A xylophone solo by Master Heller was one of the most enjoyable parts of the program and the little fellow had to appear the second time.

The 'Cat Show" was a roaring success as presenteed by Messrs. Johnson, Harris, Blanchard, Meek, McCalmont, Waddle and Brown.

Miss Hamilton of Beaver Falls played a beautiful piano solo. It was a selection from Faust and was well received by the audience.

Mr. Hawley then favored his hearers with several more selections, after which the Mandolin club added another laurel to its crown.

A "Recitative and Aria," from the opera Freishutz, was a very pretty solo by Miss Victorine Lyon. As an encore she sang "Ben Bolt," which was also warmly applauded.

The concert concluded with a chorus entitled "By Babylon's Waves," which was presented by about twenty voices.

Lieutenant Peary last week chartered at Halifax, the steamer Hope, 570 net tonnage, for the trip north with a party of scientists which he has been arranging. The vessel will be commanded by Captain Bartlett, and will leave St. John, N. B., July tenth, and two days later will make her final start from Sidney, Cape Breton. Professors Ralph Tarr, of Cornell, and A. E. Burton, of Boston, are among the scientists who will make up the party.

Two More Banks for Jeannettee.

Jeannette, Pa., June 26.—Several of Jeannette's prominent citizens have applied for charters to open two banks, one to be named the Citizens' National, the other the People's National. With the capital mentioned success is guaranteed. If the charters are granted Jeannette will have three national banks.

Woeful Ignorance.

A young couple in Clearfield county were unable to sign their names to a marriage license last week and had to use X instead. They were both born and raised in the county and their families have been residents of the county for the last half century. Pretty rough on the educational facilities of our neighboring county, this.

Might Do It in Centre.

Blair county has adopted the idea put into practice in the Allegheny criminal court, that imposing of lighter punishment on prisoners who plead guilty than on those who, knowing themselves to deserve punishment, plead not guilty and stand trial. The busines of the court is expedited by this plan, the taxpayers are saved much expense, and gain in morality cannot be small.

COLD IN HEAD

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Runaway Team Dashes Down Jail Hill at a Lightning Rate.

Little Eddie Dubois, colored, had a thrilling experience this morning which might have cost him his life. He fortunately escaped without a scatch but very badly frightened.

The little fellow crawled into an empty strawberry crate in a huckster's wagon at the top of Jail Hill, while the driver was absent from the wagon. The horse was not tied and taking fright at something, started down the hill on a run. Young Dubois was a prisoner in the strawberry crate and could not get out. His screams only caused the horse to go faster and for a few seconds it looked as is if the horse wagon and all would end up in a heap at the bottom of the hill. The horse attracted the attention of the passers by among whom was Lester Sheffer who boldly ran out and stopped the horse in its mad fright before any damage had been done.

Say They Shall Come.

The Lock Haven Democrat says: The Y. M. C. A. board of directors last evening decided, after hearing the report of the committee that went to Bellefonte, to invite Evangelists Weaver and Wheeden and their large canvas tabernacle to this city. If the evangelists come it will probably be about July 8. The ministers of the city have had the matter laid before them, and stated that they were satisfied to leave the determining of the question with the board of directors.

The conditions on which the evangelists come here are: The parties securing the evangelists must pay for the removing of the tabernacle here and must provide the evangelists with entertainment. The collections lifted during the meetings go to the evangelists. Several directors of the Y. M. C. A. have already pledged the money necessary for the tabernacle and places of entertainment have been secured.

Improvements at Uniontown.

Uniontown, Pa., June 26.—The council of this borough has contracted for about $15,000 in street improvements to be made this summer. The contracts were awarded last night for the sewering and paving of Church street and the paving of Morgantown street. The successful bidders were Ulrich, Nissley, and Williams, of Springfield, O. They will begin work immediately. Council also decided to erect two new bridges over Coal Creek run. At the request of the Centennial committee, council authorized the police committee to make thorough preparations for the protection of the town during the centennial. Twenty-five extra police will be put on.

Thirty Pounds.

From hundreds of testimonials, the originals of which are on the file and open to inspection the following is presented.

Clayton, Nevada Co., Ark., Jan. 28, 1895.

Eureka Chemical & Mfg., Co., La Crosse Wis.—Gentlemen: For forty years I used tobacco in all its forms. For twenty-five years of that time I was a great sufferer from general debility and heart disease. For fifteen years I tried to quit, but couldn't. I took various remedies, among others "No-To-Bac," "The Indian Tobacco Antidote," "Double Chloride of Gold," etc., etc., but none of them did me the least bit of good. Finally, however, I purchased a box of your "Baco-Curo" and it has entirely cured me of the habit in all its forms, and I have increased thirty pounds in weight and am relieved from all the numerous aches and pains of the body and mind. I could write a quire of paper upon my changed feelings and condition.

Its seasonable recipes and menus are of great value to the housekeeper, while many topics of interes to the home maker are touched upon. Out side of the regular departments are articles on "Household Remedies," by Dora M. Marrell; "Vegetarianism." by Dr. M. L. Holbook; "A Sprng-Blossom Tea," by Mrs. M. C. Myer; also "The Modern Christening;" "The China Closets of the Czarina; while "Summer Days at the Exchange," describes the latest and dantiest conceits in fancy wrk and embroidery, and "The Whirling of Fashion's Wheel," by Tillie May Forney as the title implies, tells of what to wear and to wear it. The publishers offer a sample copy to any of our readers who send their address to Table Talk Pub. Co. Philadelphia.

Trade Review.

New York, June 26.—R. G. Dun & Co. will say to-morrow in their weekly review of trade: Failures for the week have been 217 in the United States against 256 last year, and 25 in Canada against 22 last year.

The monetary outlook is not yet clear to some. The strength shown in recent conventions by advocates of silver coinage, and expectation that all the elements favoring that policy may yet be concentrated incline them to a waiting attitude. Their uncertainty regards improvement, notwithstanding the more widely prevalent feeling that the monetary action of the St. Louis convention will be sustained by the people But many mills have waited as long as they can with safety and signatures have given by enough cotten mills of Fall River to ensure a temporary stoppage, it is said, the nature of which is now under discussion in conference with the Providence manufacturers. Meanwhile the Pacific, of Lawrence, and the Naumkeag, of Salem have closed for a time, and practically all the southern cotton mills will be represented at a meeting on Monday with the same object. Woolen mills are acting without concert, but fourteen are mentioned in dispatches as having closed this week.

There is no similar movement in other industries, though the period of summer closing is at hand in many of them, and important controversies as to wages of iron puddlers and other hands make it likely that the annual stoppage in that industry may last longer than usual.

The weakness of wheat, which has declined 2 10 cents and of cotton, which is an eighth lower for spots, though less for futures, have full explanation in decidedly good crop prospects.

It may be doubted whether the boot and shoe industry has ever been in better shape on the whole, though manufacturers complain that an advance in price is necessary, which dealers are very reluctant to pay. Leather is slightly lower for kinds not controlled by the leather company, and at Chicago packers' hides are steady; while country have advanced a shade with small receipts.

Copper is held at 11.75 cents. Lead is hardening at 3.05 cents, and American tin plates are well sold at 15 cents below foreign.

The great combinations which the Iron Age wisely reasons tend to cause disastrously low prices hereafter still control the markets both for material and finished products of iron and steel. Though it is reported that lower prices will soon be made for coke, owing to better railroad rates, of products and for nails owing to the heavy decrease in consumption. Heavy mill reports on large sale, but middlemen or outsiders continue to undersell it. The new demand for finished products is very light and while quotations average a little lower, most of them are cut to secure business. Bessemer pig is a shade lower at $12.25 at Pittsburg. The texile manufacturers, as has been said, are generally devising curtailment of production, and the only change in prices is downward.

The B. & O. Will Default.

Baltimore, June 25.—Receiver John K Cowen, of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad announced to day that the company would default on the semi-annual interest of 3 per cent on the $3,000,000 preferred stock of that corporation due on July 1.

The holders claim that the interest on the stock is a first lien on the gross receipts of the company and will ask the courts to compel the receivers to pay it.

General Young May Not be Re-Elected.

Harrisburg, June 15.—A meeting of the Soldiers' Orphans' School commission is being held here to-night to consider routine matters and arrange the faculties of the schools for the next term. There is some doubt about the re-election of General Young as superintendent of the Scotland Industrial school.

A DRESSMAKER'S EXPERIENCE.

From a Serious Condition Quickly Restored to Health—Much Interest in the Case.

A DRESSMAKER'S EXTRAORDINARY EXPERIENCE.

The Remarkably Strange Case of a Pennsylvania Young Lady.

From the Examiner, Lancaster, Pa.

The following account of a dressmaker's remarkable experience was recently told a reporter by Miss Daisy M. Musselman, a charming young lady who resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Musselman, at No. 16 North Christian Street, Lancaster, Pa. Her case came under the notice of a reporter several days ago, is worth publishing.

Last fall Miss Musselman began to feel ill. As the days passed the decline in her health became more apparent, she became very weak, and at length feared a total collapse of her system. Miss Musselman is a dressmaker. In the early stages of her illness she found that she was unable to do the usual amount of sewing. As the ailment became more pronounced, she was at times too weak to work at all, and she had to take involuntary holidays. She became listless, took little interest in her surroundings, and finally was forced to give up sewing altogether. The greatest change took place in her physical appearance. The roses in her cheeks faded away, a chalky paleness supplanting them, her eyes lost their brilliancy and she began to lose weight steadily.

Her symptoms gave her great alarm and she consulted her family physician, one of the best of the medical fraternity in the city. He prescribed all sorts of medicines but his patient did not improve. Her nervous system seemed to be completely shattered. She could not sleep at night because of the nervousness, and her appetite was affected. She dismissed the attending physician and engaged another, also of good standing in his profession. He, too, did all that science and a long experience could suggest, but like his predecessor failed to benefit Miss Musselman, who in despair, engaged the services of a third physician. But his treatment gave no better results than did the others. Under the care of these physicians, Miss Musselman would sometimes think she was getting better but the relief was only temporary, and, after a brief respite, she would have all the old symptoms again, generally in an aggravated form. Their medicine would cause nausea. The disease which baffled them tightened its grip on her. She had a choking sensation in the throat, frequently a dull pain in the head and a stoppage of the nose.

Considerable money had been expended in her futile efforts to be cured. The nervousness became so great that she determined to consult a specialist. This would necessitate a trip to a neighboring city, involving the expenditure of more money; but she felt that something must be done. It was just as she had determined to visit the specialist that her mother suggested that she try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Through the newspapers she had learned of the marvelous cures effected by this wonderful medicine and felt that her daughter ought to give it a trial, it would cost little and could do no harm. So Miss Musselman purchased a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and began taking them.

"Before the first box had been used," said Miss Musselman to the reporter, "I began to feel better. I was delighted with their effect on me and when the first box was gone immediately bought another. I took them regularly, just as directed on the box, and, really the result was surprising. I soon began to sleep well, my appetite returned, I could take long walks without feeling fatigued and I regained the flesh I had lost. I kept right on taking the pills, and as I felt my strength returning and the nervousness disappearing, gradually resumed my work of dressmaking and before long could work as long and as well as ever. After using seven boxes of the pills, I think it was seven but it may have been one or two more, I felt that I was all right again and stopped taking them. That was some months ago and I have taken no medicine since and now feel well. I cannot be too thankful for what Pink Pills have done for me."

At the time of the reporter's visit, Miss Musselman certainly did not look like a woman in need of medicine; a pretty color mantled her cheeks and she evinced a charming vivacity that bespoke a healthy condition.

Mrs. Musselman also had a word to say about the great benefit her daughter had derived from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. "They cannot be too highly praised," she said.

This wonderful remedy is offered to the public with a full confidence that there is no disease arising from a watery or impoverished condition of the blood or shattered nervous forces which it will not cure if the directions are faithfully followed and the treatment persisted in. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine, but are a thoroughly scientific preparation, the result of years of careful study on the part of an eminent graduate of McGill Medical College, Montreal, and of Edinburgh University, Scotland, and they were successfully used by him in his everyday practice for years before being offered for general sale. The merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is attested by the hundreds of marvelous cures they have wrought in all parts of the country, and now their sale far exceeds that of any other proprietary medicine. This is the best test of the fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills perform all their makers claim for them.

As the blood is the fountain of life, and the nerves are the life itself, all disease to be fatal, must attack the one or the other. In seeking an effective nerve food, therefore, which would nourish without over-stimulating, and would build up naturally the wasted, flabby and diseased nerves, and which would at the same time give a supply of blood, at once purer, richer and redder, and more capable of carrying nutriment and oxygen to every nerve and muscular fibre of the body, Dr. Williams struck at the root of all disease, and it is eminently proper, therefore, to give a list of the diseases for which this preparation is intended, which we do herewith:

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are prepared by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Schenectady, N. Y., a firm whose ability and reliability are unquestioned. Pink Pills are not looked upon as a patent medicine, but as a prescription, having been used as such for years in general practice, and their successful results in curing various afflictions made it imperative that they be prepared in quantities to meet the demand of the public, and place them in reach of all. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and the tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration, all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

Child Love.

Welcome to the parents the puny struggler, strong in his weakness, his little arms more irrestible than the soldier's, his lips touched with persuasion which Chatham and Pericles in manhood had not. His unaffected lamentations when he lifts up his voice on high, or, more beautiful, the sobbing child, the face all liquid grief, as he tries to swallow his vexation, soften all hearts to pity and to mirthful and clamorous compassion.—Emerson.

No News from the Imprisoned Men

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 2.—It was extremely quiet to-day at the Twin shaft in Pittston, and the work of the rescuers was very slow. There was no crowd around the shaft during the day, and to a stranger viewing the place one would never think that an accident occurred there. The rescuers to-day went ahead about twelve or fifteen feet and are working now at the face of the great fall. There they have encountered a mass of solid rock which is difficult and tedious to remove.

The afternoon shift came to the surface at 5 o'clock and reported to Mine Inspector McDonald the situation of affairs. The officials at once went into the shaft and before returning came to the conclusion that the men could do very little under the existing circumstances.

A consultation was held as to the advisability of using dynamite to blast the large rocks in the path of operation. Mine Inspector McDonald says if it is safe dynamite will be used, but it is feared that this explosive will loosen and disloge a large lot of debris, which may be supporting some of the weight overhead. On the settlement of this question hinges the future progress of the work of rescue.

Hear the Rattle!

The following dispatch appeared in to-day's Pittsburg Times, which is very amusing to the people who live where the scene of action is laid. The only conclusion we can come to is that the person who wrote it was "rattled" or had the snakes himself. The article in question is very funny and has about as much truth in it as there is in the report that there was a three-inch snow fall in Spring Mills on Wednesday. The dispatch says:

"Bellefonte, Pa., June 26.—W. I. Harvey, lumbering contractor of some of the five lumbering jobs on Hayes run, in the Allegheny mountains, tells a tale of rattle snakes that is known to be true. The locality around these camps became so infested with rattlers that it became extremely dangerous to work near rocks or places where a snake could locate. A few days ago all hands armed themselves with guns, axes, clubs and everything that would answer for warfare of this kind and went on a hunt for snakes. Under every rock, in every crevice, by the sides and under rotten logs rattlers were found, and the number killed up to last evening footed us just 109, not including those of other varieties. The snakes were of all sizes and ages, measuring from three feet to almost seven, and having from two rattles up to twenty-four.

Last year this camp was troubled very little, but about 12 miles west, near Cato, they were so plenty that a party of six killed 229 in two days and at one place in overturning a stone uncovered a pile big enough to fill a bushel basket. It would seem the rattler was a migrating reptile, as the Cato locality is not infested to such an extent this year.

Lincoln in the Five Points.

Not long before Lincoln was first nominated for the presidency he went to New York to make a political speech at the Cooper Union. While there, according to a writer in the Philadelphia Press, he wandered about the city a good deal, and once went to the Five Points, and then the most notorius of New York slums.

There he was attracted by the sound of music, and perceiving upon the door an invitation to strangers to enter, he went in, and found himself in the Five Point Mission.

His manner betrayed so much interest in the children especially in the singing that the superintendent, though he did not know him, invited him to speak.

Mr. Lincoln accepted the invitation and as the superintendent used to say talked to the children just as a loving and wise father might have talked to his own sons and daughters, without a trace of pendantry or cant. After the exercises the superintendent asked the stranger his name.

"My name is Lincoln," was the answer. "I live in Illinois."

And then the superintendent knew that the speaker must be the man whose address at the Cooper Union had been so much talked about for the last few days.

Wandered From Home.

Edward Selke of Scotia has wandered away from home and up to this time his friends and relatives have been unable to find him. Selke was badly troubled with dyspepsia and brooded considerably over being out of work. It is feared his mind has given away and thus every effort possible is being made to find him. He is aged about 24 years, is light complected, has light mustache and weight about 150 pounds, and is 5 ft. 6 in. tall. He has been traced as far as Bald Eagle Furnace where he stopped and begged something to eat, but there the track was lost and his whereabouts are unknown.

SCHONFIELD AGAIN IN JAIL.

Beaver Falls Authorities Defied By a Transient Clothing Dealer.

Beaver Falls, Pa., June 26.—Herman Schonfield, who was arrested here some days ago for conducting a clothing sale without having first secured a borough license, was again placed in the hands of the sheriff to-day.

When Schonfield was first arrested and taken before Burgess Jas. Piper, he was fined $100, and upon his refusal to pay the fine he was committed to jail. His attorney had him released on a writ of habeas corpus and argument came up on the writ this afternoon before Judge Wilson, in Beaver. After hearing the evidence and argument the court decreed that the writ be dismissed and that the petitioner be remanded to the custody of the sheriff. An opinion on the constitutionality of the ordinance will be filed by the court at a future date.

Free Mail Delivery to Stop.

Orders were issued Monday from the Post Office Department at Washington discontinuing the free delivery service in forty-five small cities in the country.

These towns for some years past have been enjoying what is known as the "village free delivery," under an arrangement made when Mr. Wanamaker was Postmaster General. The service was somewhat in the line of an experiment, but seemed to give satisfaction, and year after year an appropriation was made to keep it up.

This Congress, however, has refused to continue the appropriation, and free delivery in all of these offices will have to be discontinued. Those in Pennsylvania that will have to return to the old system are: Kutztown, Terre Hill, Jenkinstown, Emporium, Shoemakerville, Pittsfield and Berwick. These towns were selected by Postmaster General Wanamaker at the inauguration of this experiment, and the discontinuance of the free delivery system will doubtless raise quite a protest from the patrons of these offices.

The Fifteenth International Christian Endeavor Convention is to meet at Washington, D. C., July 8-13, and an unusually large number of delegates is expected to be present. One of the chief topics for the opening, Wednesday, will be "Deepening the Spiritual Life;" "Christian Citizenship," will be a chief topic on Thursday; "Saved to Serve" will be the motto and theme on Friday; "North America For Christ," Saturday's subject. Sunday will be given up to denominational missionary meetings. On Monday the interests of the suffering Armenians will be considered and the closing sessions of the convention will be held in the three tents, in Central Hall and in five large churches.

A chapter of Kirk Munroe's serial story entitled "Rick Dale," which is nearing the end; the last installment of Marion Harland's serial, "An Old Field school girl;" short stories, articles on photography, departments on Stamps, Interscholastic Sport, Bicycle hours, humorous items, etc., with excellent illustrations, complete the number

A Huge Plow.

A traction engine on the Chico ranch pulls twelve-inch plows, and with three men, does the work of nine men and fifty-four horses. It plows forty acres in twelve hours at the cost of the time of three men, two cords of wood, and the oil, wear and tear, and interest upon the cost of the engine. So says the Chico (Cal.) Chronicle.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co, Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimoniale. Address, education not possible in former years but now continuously operative in elevating the standards of dental education by increasing the length of term, enlarging the curriculum and establishing standards which must be met by all reputable institutions of dental education.

STATE DENTISTS IN SESSION

"Co relative with the work of the educational forces of the Faculties Association is that of the National Board of Dental Examiners, having as its field of activity the executive function in connection with the existing legislative enactments pertaining to dental educational standards.

"In the progress of our educational development we are confronted with a problem which is assuming serious proportions viz the rapid multiplication of dental educational institutions. It is not their multiplicity per se which is the serious factor to be considered but rather that they can multiply under existing conditions practically without regard to the quality of their educational product.

"It is true that the coveted stamp of reputability of the National Association of Dental Faculties is an important restraining factor in holding the Educational standards of American Colleges up to a fair degree of excellence but a little study of the conditions under which it exists and functions as a restraining force in this matter will show that while it is an immense factor for good it is inadequate. A stream can rise no higher than its source and as under our National Constitution no laws affecting the autonomy of the states in the free exercise of their police power can be put into operation. The National Association D. F. are dependent wholly upon the moral force of their organization in the effective exercise of their function. Their moral position is one of the great strength and it has done an immense work for good but it is limited, handicapped by the lack of constitutional legislative authority and can go only so far as the majority of its members shall authorize.

"The only certain and effective method for dealing with the problem of what shall be the educational standard in dentistry is through the channels of state legislation. Further it is my belief that the salvation of the dental profession of the future from the wholesale ingress of incompetent and unworthy members is to be effectively attained only through the same channel.

"In the early history of our profession when dental colleges were few the state relegated to these institutions the right to license their graduates to practice. The system was not abused, was not in fact incapable of abuse under those circumstances but by the rapid multiplication of dental colleges, the licensing power was also multiplical in the same degree and the possibility for abuse of that power correspondingly increased. With no restrictions as to the creation of dental colleges, and the only limitation operative in respect to their creation, the purely financial one of their ability to produce a surplus of income over expenditures, the competition engendered thereby must naturally tend toward a lowering of standards in order to secure large classes upon the size of which the question of surplus depends. With these conditions possible it is evident that in justice to its citizens whom under its police powers it is its duty to protect from incompetent medical and dental service, the state should reassume its original right to license its practitioners of the healing art and prescribe the standards of the minimum competency.

"By such action the licensing power would be rested in the State Board of Dental Examiners who under a wisely framed law would be the guardians of public health to the extent of preventing any incompetent person from practicing within the national limits of the state by examining the graduates of all colleges with out exception and demanding a fixed standard of quadification before issuing a license to practice. No doubt objection will be urged that a competent board of examiners one equal in ability to deatal college faculties will be difficult to obtain but in answer to this it may be said that the difficulty ought not to be greater than that of securing a college faculty and these seem to grow ready made.

"With the enlarged powers here suggested in connection with the work of a state board of dental examiners, it is desirable that the authority be explicility defined and their findings be open to appeal in all cases of reasonable doubt as to their equity or correctness.

"Under a properly framed law involving the principles here alluded to, any college organization objecting to provisions created solely for the good of denistry and the public weal; equitable alike to all dental educational institutions within the state or out, of it, should be justly regarded as seeking its own interests before that of the profession and the commonwealth.

"The present state law of Pennsylvania regulating the practice of dentistry needs to be replaced with one more in harmony with the conditions to be met now and for the future.

"I can but briefly allude to the other matters which are to claim your attention. The program will indicate some of the times of thought in which during the past year progress has been taking place. The relation of our specialty to collatrel lines of research is being daily shown to be more intimate than its fathers may have deemed possible. Its scietific relationships are being more clearly defined and we have every reason to be proud of the scientific advancement made by our own investigators many of whom are members of this society.

"In dental art is especially to be noted the development of our resorces made possible by the application of electricity in our word. In the cataphoric method seems to be immanent the solution of the problem of painless dentistry. A year ago we had but entered the threshold of what now appears to be an enexhaustable treasure house of dental possibilities in the way of electrical applications.

"It is my sad duty to officially call your attention to the death of one of our most honored members Dr. W. E. Magill of Erie Pa., Chairman of the State Board of Dental Examiners.

"I face the duty of speaking in adequate terms of the life and character of Dr. Magill with a sense of entire incompetency. I had known him for the time of my membership in this society and my respect for his sturdy, manly qualities was unbounded. Had I been asked to name a man in this society whose honor, integrity and equity could at all times and under all circumstances be relied upon I am sure the name which would have spontaneously risen to my lips would have been his. His service for the colleges was a long and noble one and wherever and whenever his effort for the good of dentistry was called forth, he gave earnestly and valiantly his best endeavors to that end. It is fitting that appropriate recognition be made of the loss sustained by this society in the death of Dr. Magill and I would suggest that a committe be appointed for that purpose. I have now only to thank you for your attention and to declare the 28th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society in session for the transaction of the business as set forth in the program."

The afternoon session of the first day's meeting of the State dentists was given over mainly to the routine work of the program. The report of the Board of Censors was handed in in the morning and accepted.

Probably the most important feature of the afternoon's work was the discussion of the framing of the new State law, the purpose and advantages of which were fully and clearly outlined in President Kirk's annual address in the morning. The proposed bill was ably discussed by different members of the Society and resolutions endorsing the same were adopted with a few minor amendments.

As a memorial committee on the death of Dr. W. A. Magill of Erie, Drs C. N. Pierce, J. C. Green and Henry Gerhart were appointed.

The committees appointed last year to revise the By-laws and the framing of the Dental law made their several reports, which were adopted without material changes.

In the evening Dr. Henry Gerhart, D. D. S., of Lewisburg, read a paper on "Do we know anything of the Evolution and Etiology of Dental Caries?" The speaker advanced some excellent ideas and commanded the close attention of his hearers. Others who participated in the discussion of this paper were Dr. C. N. Pierce, Prof. L. C. Stellwagon and Prof. W. F. Litch of Philadelphia.

The evening session adjourned at an early hour to enable the members of the Society to attend the reception tendered by Governor and Mrs. Hastings at their home on Allegheny street. The reception was probably the most enjoyable part of the program and there were none who failed to attend. The Hastings mansion was thrown open to the guests and everything possible done to make their brief stay enjoyable. As they entered the spacious hallway they were welcomed by the host and hostess and made to feel perfectly at home. A number of the representative people of Bellefonte were there to meet the visitors and a very pleasant hour was spent, after which they bade the Governor and his wife goodnight and retired to their respective hotels to rest up for the work on Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY MORNING

The session this morning was given over to Clinics and proved a very interesting and instructive one. The demonstrators had different subjects to operate on and a number of difficult dental operations were performed.

H. C. Register, D. D. S., of Philadelphia, filled a tooth by a special method of operating. F. D. Gardner, D. D. S., of Philadelphia, gave a practical demonstration of the "Use of the Electric Mallet in Gold Filling." "A Continuous-Gum Method in Crown- and Bridge-work, using the Electric Furnace," was the Clinic by F. A. Coney, D. D. S., of Doylestown. During this Clinic teeth were baked in the Electric Furnace before the spectators.

"How to Control Peri-dental Inflammation with Electricity, and Cataphoresis for Obtunding Sensitive Dentine and Bleaching Discolored Teeth" was an interesting clinic by Dr. G. L. Simpson of Allegheny. "Cataphoresis, with a Demonstration of Special Electrodes" was the clinic taken up by Dr. M. W. Hollingsworth of Philadelphia. This concluded the work of the morning and the session adjourned until 2 p. m

Synonyms, Antonyms, and Prepositions.

A new volume on "Synonyms, Antonyms, and Prepositions" will shortly be issued by the Funk and Wagnall's Publication House. This has been prepared with great care by the Rev. James C. Fernal, editor of the department of synonyms in the Funk and Wagnalls Standard dictionary. The editor has carefully discriminated the chief synonyms of the English language, some 6,000 or 7,000 in number, by the same method that has won so much approval in the Standard dictionary. Taking one word in each group as the basis of comparison, Mr. Fernal defines this clearly and then he proceeds to show how the other words agree with or differ from it, thus the whole group is held to one fixed point. The treatment is in popular and readable style. The book also contains a large number of Antonyms as well as prepositions, and its closing pages are devoted to questions and examples of service to both teacher and student.

The type, brevier, is pleasing to the eye and the key-words at the top of each page enhance the value of the book for purposes of ready reference.

Great Oaks from Little Acorns Grew,

Is a line from the trite old verse we used to recite in our school boy days. It has a forcible application to those small ailments which we are apt to disregard until they reach formidable proportions. A fit of indigestion, a slight attack of constipation, it is assumed, will soon pass off, but is very apt to get worse, and in the meantime is neglected until the ailment becomes chronic, and then, if not entirely eradicated, is a constant annoyance and menace of worse consequences, for diseases, recollect, beget one another. How much wiser to resort to a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at the outset of the malady than to temporize with it at the start, or treat it with violent remedies in its maturity. Be on time with disease, or it may "floor" you. Malarious, Rheumatic and kidney complaints, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and nervousness are all diseases of rapid growth, and should be "nipped in the bud" by a timely resort to the Bitters.

New Jersey Justice.

Now New Jersey Justice has passed judgment on a man who was charged with disturbing the neighborhood with his snoring which the prosecutors likened unto the noise from a boiler factory in full operation. The Justice advised the man with the wonderful snoring power to move or rejust his breathing aparatus. It was claimed by the neighbors that he could be heard snoring a square or more away. An individual with such lungs would doubtless make a good cornet player. Over in Jersey they do not want to give a man a chance to even sleep without disturbing him.

Just What's Needed.

Exclaims thousands of people who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at this season of the year, and who have noted the success of the medicine in giving them relief from that tired feeling, waning appetite and state of extreme exhaustion after the close confinement of a long winter season, the busy time attendant upon a large and pressing business during the spring months and with vacation time yet some weeks distant. It is then that the building-up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are fully appreciated. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration cause by change of season, climate or life, and while it tones and sustains the system, it purifies and vitalizes the blood.

Supposed Gold Find Near Sunbury,

A large deposit of auriferous sand and rock, containing gold and silver, has been discovered on the lands of Thomas J. Lyons, about three miles northeast of Sunbury. The discovery was made at the head of a canyon at an altitude of four hundred feet above the level of the river. The canyon is full of dykes and at the top of the hill where the find was made is an upheavel covering from ten to twenty acres full of anetamorphic matter, and red and black sand. The place has been partly opened and about ten feet below the surface a regular vein was discovered. On the west and east sides their are veins of syenitic rock. The top rock over the vein appears like a hanging wall consisting of a sort of granite with gold disseminated through it. Several assays were made by the Penn Smelting and Refining Works, at Philadelphia. They reported from $5 to $14.20 gold and from $3 to $5 in silver taken from the surface. He has lately gone down some six feet, and two different assays made by Messrs. Ricketts & Banks, of New York City. They reported from $9.09 to $20.67 gold a small quantity of silver. Mr. Emanuel Wilvert, of Sunbury, has a lease on the lands and is preparing to make a general opening. He says he expects to open several fissures that are in sight and is satisfied that there is a large quantity of silver ore below the gold strata from the indications of the dykes and canyon. He has sent some of the ores to a smelter to have further tests made.

—Company I, of the Fifth regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania has been disbanded, and a new company, located at Clearfield, will be mustered into service next Monday evening to fill up the gap thus made in Central Pennsylvania's infantry regiment, always the pride of the localities where the several companies are located. Company I was at one time perched upon the top rung of the Fifth's strong ladder, leading in marksmanship, soldiery bearing, drill, etc., but it fell before the breastwork of time and its members no longer owe allegience to the State as National Guardsmen. Since the disbandment of Company E of the Fifth at Philipsburg a number of years ago, there has been no company of that letter in the organization. George C. Davison, now of Tyrone, organized the company and was its efficient and enthusiastic captain for some years. It went down when Captain Simler held the reins. The new company at Clearfield will take the letter E, and I will get a long rest, the regiment having its full complement, eight companies, without it. So it goes. As one organization of the National Guard goes another is quickly on the platform to move into ranks. The town that lets her company go is left out in the cold with no hope for getting warm again in undue haste.—Tyrone Herald.

Medicated Honey.

The "French Scientist" appears to be doing a lot of experimenting of late. His latest achievement is the forcing of bees into the manufacture of medicated honey, in a variety of flavors, for as many kinds of diseases. He is said to keep the bees under glass, so that they can only pasture upon flowers specially provided and chosen for special medicinal properties. In this manner ready made physic of the most delicious kind is garnered. In this way influenza, coughs and colds, indigestion, asthma and many other ills are said to be readily if indirectly reached, and while the palate of the weakened invalid and the stubborn child is tickled he is being surreptitously cured.

THE BARS OF HEALTH

once down, disease finds an easy entrance.

If there is a weak spot in the body, disease-germs will find it. They will lodge right in that spot and unless they are driven out at once, will increase and multiply and grow into seriousness. Weakness is a predisposition to disease. Whether the weakness be local or general, it is dangerous. Good healthy strength all over the body is the best safeguard against disease. Debility of any kind is a direct invitation to serious sickness. The reason that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption if taken in the early stages of the disease, is that it puts the whole body into a hearty, healthy condition. The poisonous tubercular matter is thrown off by the lungs, and the pure, rich blood coursing through them, quickly stops the inflammation, heals the broken membranes and makes the lungs perfectly strong and sound. Consumption is marked by wasting away of the bodily tissues and vice versa. A wasting of the flesh brings on consumption. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery induces the accumulation of sound, hard, healthy flesh. It increases the appetite and the capacity of the digestive organs for the assimilation of food. It is a purifier, a tonic and a powerful curative remedy, all in one bottle. All who will send their addresses, this notice and six cents in stamps, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., will receive by return mail a large book of 160 pages, which tells all about the "Golden Medical Discovery."

The Reading's Fast Time.

The Reading's seashore flyers to Atlantic City have been making some wonderfully fine time recently. Last week the Reading railroad's four o'clock flyer made the quickest trip ever accomplished by a regular train, and established a new record for travel between Philadelphia and Atlantic City. In precisely 56 minutes from the time the ferry boat left Chestnut street wharf the train was brought to a standstill in the depot at Atlantic City. The 55½ miles between Camden and Atlantic City was traversed in 46 minutes, showing that the Reading is not only capable of pegging down the time to 60 minutes from city to seashore, but can even, if desirable, better this consummation of what has been the dream of railroad men for years.

Cure for Scandal.

Here is a sure cure for a terrible disorder of the mouth, commonly called "scandal." 'Take of 'good nature' one ounce; of an herb, called by the Indians 'mind your business,' one ounce; mix these with a little 'charity for others,' and two or three sprigs of 'keep your tongue between your teeth.'" Application:

The symptoms are a violent itching of the tongue and roof of the mouth, which invariably takes place while your are in company of a species of animals called gossips; when you feel a fit of it coming on take a spoonful of the mixture, hold it in your mouth which you will keep closely shut till you get home, and you will find a complete cure. Should you apprehend a relapse, keep a small bottle full about you, and on the slightest symptoms repeat the dose.

"If taken into the head by the nostrils two or three times a week, Thomas' Electric Oil will positively relieve the most offensive case of catarrh." Rev. E. F. Crane, Dunkirk, N. Y.

Be True to Yourself.

There are very many boys, who start to learn a trade or business, who have very little knowledge of themselves or of the true purpose of life. They mistake trickery and deceit for genuis and talent. They are apt to think, if, by adroitness and disregard of the truth occasionally, they can make others think they are accomplishing considerable, they have done much to establish a reputation for smartness. Better bear in mind one thing boys, you may not appear to advance so rapidly at first as some others if you are painstaking and accurate, but habits of care and accuracy will become a practical matter in all your business life and the satisfaction will come to you from the knowledge of being able to master your business will more than pay you for the labor and pains you have expended.

The boy in the printing office who is careless about distributing will make slow progress in his composition. If he think it smart to slily drop a word of italic into a wrong case rather than distribute it in the proper one he will soon find himself without a position. No one is less needed about a well-ordered printing office than a mischievous, slovenly boy. If there was any reasonable hopes that such traits would end with his apprenticeship there would be some hope for the boy, but the habits we form in our youth are very apt to fix themselves upon us, and as we grow older they become fixed principles which are hard to lay aside, if indeed we can overcome them at all.

If we do not master habits they will master us, and when once that is the case we become slaves of the worst class. No boy who has any hope to succeed can afford to be conquered by even one bad habit, for sooner or later he will find himself the slave not only of one but too many habits which will fix themselves upon him and rule him with a heavy hand.

There is nothing more essential to the success of a young man beginning a business than to pay strict attention to detail. First master the fundamental principles of the business you engage in and all the rest will be comparatively easy. The boy who enters the carpenter's shop and attempts to saw a board or hew a piece of timber, and pays little or no attention to the line drawn for him to work to, but leaves much to be done to the one whose duty it is to finish the work will never rise above a certain plane in the business. He will always be a second-rate workman and command second-rate pay.

The apprentice of the printing business who is careless about his work, slovenly about his habits, doing only what he feels obliged to in order to fill the time he is required to work, will be far better at work on the publicstreets than in the office for he will never amount to much in the one and will be less in the way on the other.

Those boys who are not afraid of work whether it be to sweep the office, sort pi, count papers, wash rollers, clean the machines, run the press, or set type, and do it cheerfully, as though it was a pleasure to perform any duty, are the boys who both learn the secret of successful business life and are able to fill the highest and best positions in the trade. They are not obligbed to search for work from place to place.

They are princes of the trade. They are the autocrats of business. There has been a limited or confined education in one particular division of the trade, but by close attention, studious habits, careful and painstaking application to labor and the minor details, as well as the more general affairs of the business they are masters of the whole, and like a general in command in an army they are able to overlook the whole field, and counsel or command for the best interest of all.

These are the boys who develop into the best men of the land, who become the leaders in thought and all great movements for the building up of the nation. They are the true men whose acquaintance is desired, whose counsel is praised and whose words are full of wisdom. The are the trusted men of the age in which they live. The law of God is their guide; justice and truth are the foundations on which they build. They are true to God, true to themselves, and true to their fellow men, and because they honor God he crowns them with honors, and sets them in the chief seats of the people. They occupy no low or cramped position, but stand at the head, masters among the masters.

What say you boys and girls in every trade? Have you ever thought you were born for something more than a machine to be guided and moved at the will of others? Be true to yourselves and seek for the highest attainments to be found and bring every good thing within your reach into service for your best interest. Be honest and true in everything. Fear nothing but wrong and your life experience will become luminous with good.—The Dawn.

A Qualified Victory.

"What's the matter, Jack? You don't behave like a man who has just become engaged to a lovely girl—smoking all day and pretending to read instead of finishing your picture for the academy."

JAMES RINE TALKS.

Everybody Knows Him.—Everybody Believes Him in Bellefonte.

As you lean back in your chair with your feet on the fender and peruse your evening paper, you must be amazed at the columns devoted to advertising patent medicines, the schemes employed to bring the remedies before the readers notice and the ingenuity displayed in wording testimonials so as to make them conform to the advertised claims. The tongue runs glibly over half a column of introductory matter and then as a rule, winds up with the gist of some testimonial received from a sufferer of some malady. Read them carefully and notice this, Chicago and St Louis examples do duty in New York. Calafornia residents flit before Maine citizens in regular succession like the connected scenes in a Panorama. Is it not hard to indorse an act performed in some far away hamlet even if embellished with all the adjectives that the Anglo Saxon language can furnish. Reverse the case and read the testimony of Mr. Jas. Rine 2 Thomas St. The impression left is convincing, conclusive. Says he: "My trouble in the back started from a slight strain. It developed into a urinary difficulty, the most marked being an excessive desire to urinate, particularly at night. My back hurt to stoop, to straighten up and if I made any awkward or unthought of move I always got a reminder in the shape of a sharp, piercing twinge. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for it at Green's Pharmacy. They cured me. I am pleased at the result, for one year of it is as long as any man cares to stand of Kidney complaint."

Sunday at the Tabernacle.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin says: Sunday was a day of large crowds and great success at the great tabernacle. More than thirty persons arose and requested prayer, and fifteen of these afterwards went forward and declared their intention to begin a new life with Christ as their leader.

The afternoon meeting for men only was a most successful one from every standpoint. About 700 were present, Mr. Weaver preached with wonderful power. He spoke in detail of five things which lead men astray, the most prominent of which are the love of money, wine and women. At the conclusion about 500 men arose and declared their intention of living a better life, and about twenty five requested special prayer. The same kind of a meeting will be held next Sunday, when the subject, 'A gang of robbers," will be continued.

The evening meeting saw the largest crowd yet present. Every seat was occupied, and large crowds collected on either side and on both ends of the tent. Hundreds were turned away. The song service conducted by Mr. Weeden, was unusually good, the vast audience taking hold of the singing in a wonderful manner. The sermon on the subject "Eternity" was a magnificent effort, and held the attention of the great crowd to the last word. The workers are much encouraged by the result, and begin the week's work with renewed zeal.

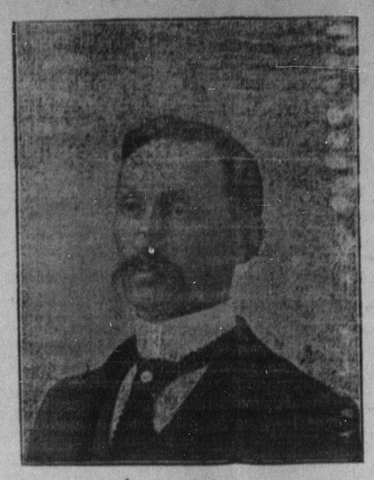
Chas. P. Long, Spring Mills, Pa.



The above is a cut of Mr C. P. Long of Spring Mills, candidate before the late Republican convention for the nomination for treasurer. This cut and the following brief sketch of his early career were obtained by the newspaper for publication in the evening previous to the meeting of the convention when the outlook made it almost certain that he would be the successful candidate. But subsequent proceedings proved the fallacy of "coming events cast their shadows before."

Charles P. Long is entirely a self made man. He was not born of the wealthy to give him prominence, his parents were not of the affluent to give him a commending position, but rather of the humble and not helped with this worlds superabundance, yet held in high esteem by the community. The writer will remember Mr. Long in his early youth, a mere child you may say, and even at that early age, when not attending school his studies instead of books consisted of toil and care, not like other lads of his years, he was rarely found at play or idling in the town stores his leisure was only another name for toil. When about 15 years of age, he embarked in a trifling business in a small room located on the pike a short distance below Spring Mills, here he commenced business with a stock of candies valued at less than one dollar. But in this little shop he laid the foundation for his subsequent successful business career. Mr. Long is a striking example of what can be accomplished by perseverance, and a laudable ambition on arriving at his majority. Mr. Long allied himself to the grand old Republican party, and ever since has acted and been an unflinching advocate of its policy and principles. At the late convention he was the youngest man on the list of candidates for any of the nomination, and unquestionably the most popular gentleman in Penns valley, and it might be added, is the best known young men in Centre county. On the Monday evening previous to the meeting of the convention it was generally understood that he would be the nominee for treasurer, which fact had been telegraphed to the Philadelphia Press and published in their addition on Tuesday morning. However later on Monday evening, it was evident from the information received at head quarters that A. V. Miller of College township would be nominated for sheriff. This new and rather extraordinary term of affairs, of course precluded Mr. Long's nomination as their townships run pretty close together and it was deemed unwise to nominate both gentleman and therefore Mr. Long was, so to speak, set aside.

It will be observed that Mr. Long went into the convention with the remarkable strength of twenty delegates, remarkable from the fact that he was surrounded and completely hemmed in on all sides by prominent and able candidates and had only the fag end—a small portion of the county, to operate in, and this following he firmly held not losing a delegate in a single instance, but increased it to thirty votes on the 7th ballot when he dropped out, and on the 8th ballot Mr. Kline received the nomination. Had the delegates acted on first impression, when their own candidate dropped out having voted for the weakest candidate then remaining which customary, instead of every time for the strongest, in all probability Mr. Long would now be the nominee of the Republican party for treasurer of Centre county.

But notwithstanding his defeat, Mr. Long accepts the vertict of the republican convention and will give hearty and cordial support to his successful rival as he will to the whole ticket, and will urge all his friends to do all they can to make the victory in Centre county this fall over. whelming and complete. "A long pull, a strong pull and a pull together," is what Mr. Long, desires that our victory may be complete, and the writer hopes that every defeated candidate, and every republican will give as cordial support to the ticket this fall, as Mr. Long will do. He is a Lutheran, has the success of the party at heart, and is as anxious for the success of the ticket, as though his name were upon it.

That

Extreme tired feeling afflicts nearly everybody at this season. The hustlers cease to push, the tireless grow weary, the energetic become enervated. You know just what we mean. Some men and women endeavor temporarily to overcome that

Tired

Feeling by great force of will. But this is unsafe, as it pulls powerfully upon the nervous system, which will not long stand such strain. Too many people "work on their nerves," and the result is seen in unfortunate wrecks marked "nervous prostration," in every direction. That tired should be possessed of certain information without which millions contract pernicious and most destructive habits—habits which make young men prematurely aged, pale, haggard, listless, devoid of ambition, easily tired, languid, forgetful and incapable; fill mad-houses and swell the list of suicides; separate husbands and wives, bring untold suffering to millions, even unto the third fourth generations. Parents, gaurdians and philanthropists can do no better service to the rising generation, than to place in their hands the information and warnings contained in a little book carefully prepared by an association of medical men who have had vast experience in dealing with the grave maladies here hinted at, and who feel that they owe it to humanity to warn the young of the land against certain destructive habits which are far more prevalent than can be imagined by any layman, and which if persisted in gradually undermine the constitution and health and destroy the future happiness of the victim. Cut out this notice and enclose it with ten cents in stamps (to pay postage) to World Dispensary Medical Association, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo N.Y. and the book will be sent, secure from observation in a plain sealed envelope.

Out-door Sports

The hardy, strong, athletic man, after enjoying the sports of out-door life, feel all the better, although he may have suffered as many do, from serious sprains and bruises. If sports were stopped on that account, we would have no more of the great base ball games, sports of field and turf, of oar and gun, of rod and racquet, but all sportsmen and athletes take sprains and bruises as an accompaniament with composure, because they know how easy and certain it is to use St. Jacobs Oil and get rid of permanently the worst forms of any such accidents. There may be some, indeed many, not quite up to date in being prepared for the season's enjoyment and such should undoubtedly have a supply of this great remedy for pain.

A Year In the Mines.

The Department of the Interior has issued its annual report of the mineral products for the past year, and the showing is the best ever made, except in the years of 1890, 1891 and 1892. The entire value of the minerals produced in 1895 reaches the enormous total of $611,796,290. First of all in importance is soft coal, which amounted to $115,749,000. Pennsylvania anthracite was valued at $82,000,000. Pig iron ranked next to soft coal, passing above $105,000,000 in value. These three Pennsylvania productions far outranked silver at $60,000,000, and gold at $47,000,000, while petroleum oil out distanced gold, the oil product amounting to $57,000,000.

Pennsylvania is easily the foremost of all mineral producing States of the Union her coal alone surpassing all the gold and silver of the whole nation, while the Pennsylvania from output is without a really good second. Probably it is safe to say that, including pig iron, coal oil, natural gas, and her smaller mineral contributions, Pennsylvania produced considerably more than half as much of the mineral wealth as all of the rest of the United States combined. With Ohio the amount runs up to probably half of all that is produced by the whole nations. Yet the little States of the Rocky Mountains volume themselves on their mineral output, and ask to dictate the policy of the government because of their small addition to its wealth.

Big as is the value of the mineral production of the United States old Agaicola, the farmer, still lays it out completely. The hay crop itself is worth more money in a year than all the minerals produced.—Pittsburg Times.

MASTER JOHN.

Master John Landor, 4 years old and every inch a man, wore a debonair manner as he strolled down Market street with his nurse. He carried his head becomingly high, as little men should, and despite his rather toted air, which was perfectly in harmony with his aristocratic circumstances of his domestic and social life, the big brown eyes in his head were wide open to every detail of life in the moving street. That is why he happened to observe that a handsome young woman started in dazed surprise when she met him, caught her breath, and with staring eyes, open mouth and a certain hungry eagerness of face and attitude stood and gazed at him as he passed nonchalantly on. Being a handsome boy and accustomed to the adulation of women, he did not dain to look back or even wonder at the uncommon excitement displayed by the beautiful stranger. As for the nurse, she had seen nothing, possessing that comfortable order of dullness that passes for valuable patience in the conduct of children's nurses.

The startled woman, known in various cities as Mlle. Clarisse Chevalier, likely would have fainted had not a gentleman who noted her distress roused her with a proffer of assistance.

"No!" she replied sharply and ungraciously her whole manner instantly changing to defiance and self control and her brilliant black eyes flashing with impatience and resentment. She strode on, turned to look at a shop display in a window, cast a furative glance in the direction which the boy and his nurse had taken, and then, with a brave show of indifference, began to follow. It would have been evident to a very casual observer that she was suffering. The drawn mouth corners, the dilated nostrils, the quick breathing, the eager burning eyes and a certain irregularity of step all indicated distress.

"Why wait?" was what she whispered to herself. "I know as much now as I can learn to-morrow. The girl is as great a fool to-day as she will be next week. Why not make the dash now? Oh, how beautiful he is. What strong little legs! What a manly walk! And his wonderful brown eyes and golden curls—I can't wait another day. They don't know I'm in town or even live. I don't care. I don't care what comes of it. I must have him now—now, this very minute! Oh my God give me strength! My heart is bursting!"

With that she gathered herself up, and with eyes of a wonderful luster plunged boldly into her task. She presently overtook the boy and his nurse, and with a natural, easy and pleasant manner said to the girl:

"Oh, I beg pardon! You are Mary, I believe—the Landors nurse, Mrs. Landor passed me a few minutes ago looking for you, and when I told her I had seen you down the street she asked me to fetch the little boy to her. She is waiting back there. You know she and I are old friends, but I havn't seen her for a long time. Oh, by the way, she said you might spend the day and night with your grandmother in Oakland, and she ask me to hand you this money. Come, little man, your mamma is waiting. Goodby, Mary!"

Her manner was so confidant breezy and sweeping and sweeping that she carried the assault without difficulty. Mary gladdened with the thought of a holiday and with a bright piece of silver in her hand, went joyously and unsuspectingly on her way, while little John, likely delighted after the way of his sex, with a new sensation in the role of an exceptionally pretty and dashing woman, permitted her hand to seize his with rather a too severe pressure and to be led away in triumph.

Perhaps he was too youthful and inexperienced to observe that her elegant clothes were too pronouncedly fashionable that the color of her lips and cheeks was slightly too robust, and that in her face and manner was a certain hardness quite uncommon in the refined set to which he was accustomed. Possible had he noticed these things they would have made the woman all the more attractive in his eyes. Certainly her dash and swing were captivating and the free grace of her movements and the handsome face and tall distinguished figure might have made a conquest of an older man than he. As they moved rapidly along, hurrying to escape into a quite street. Master John was rather proud to see that the men whom they met stared at his conductor as he had never seen them stare at the other women, and he was pleased to note the complete indifferences which his companion exhibited for these blunt and forward attentions.

After awhile she hurried up a flight of stairs and into handsomely appointed rooms. She instantly locked the door, dashed off her hat tore her gloves to shreds in her haste to remove them, flung herself on her knees at Masters John's feet and clasped him to her bosom. She held him thus tightly and in silence until he began to struggle for freedom, and then followed a remarkable scene.

"Where is my muvver?" he demanded.

"Your mother, boy—your mother? Oh, she'll be along pretty soon!"

The woman was now choking and sobbing, and, again drawing the boy to her and kissing him hungrily again and again, she brokenly said.

"That's all right, my boy; you'll see her very soon. Look at me. Look me straight in the eyes—like that."

She held his pretty rosy cheeks between her hands and each gazed steadily into the eyes of the other, she through her tears, he wondering and admiring, but distressed.

"And your name is Johnnie," she said growing calmer," "but I am going to call you Jack."

"My name isn't Johnnie, and it isn't Jack," he replied with sturdy dignity and visible offense. "It's John—John Edward Landor."

Her eyes twinkled, and she laughed delightedly. Then she caught him in her arms and kissed him and cried until he indignantly demanded to be freed. Upon that she cajoled, petted and humored him and ran and fetched some candy, and with jests and laughter tempted him with it, but he stoutly said:

"No, tank you. I take candy from no body but jus' my muvver."

She stopped as though he had struck her Then again she dropped to her knees, again each gazed into the eyes of the other.

"You have brown eyes, John," she said very softly and gently and sadly, "and your father has gray eyes, has he not?"

"Yes."

"And your mother has blue eyes?"

"Yes, I fink so"

"Do you like my black eyes, John?"

Unfortunately at that moment her eyes, always brilliant and sparkling, held a certain eager fire that filled the lad with uneasiness

"No," he answered. "I like my muvver's eyes."

"But, John," she pleaded, clutching him with unconscious force and devouring his face with her insatiable eyes, "you could love me very much, couldn't you? You do love me a little now, John, don t you?"

"No!" he exclaimed impatiently. "I jus' love my muvver. Where is she? I want her." With that he pushed her away.

She flung herself upon the floor and wept in a transport of anguish, while he stood looking on in surprise and alarm, his fine breeding giving him nevertheless a cool, half pitying, half scornful self possession.

Her agony was of short duration, and she rose smiling and brilliant again. Her tears and handkerchief had long ago left her face white, even pallid; but now a bright flush was rising and it lent a special charm to her bold, showy beauty. She bustled about, chatting, laughing, singing—employing every artifice to hold the boy's attention and avoiding any mention of his mother.

Master John was too wise to fall under these lures. He had become suspicious, and was now obdurate and ugly.

She flew at him and caught him angrily by the arms.

"Bah!" she cried. "That is the father in you, and you have that same cold, sneering mouth of his that I hate!" And she flung the child from her and stood glaring at him, trembling and terrible.

But for a moment only. She broke into a laughter that was half sobbing and wholly hysterical, and before his trembling lips could open for sobs which he was trying so manfully to suppress she was transformed into a cyclone of jollity and diversion. He regarded her with a painful mixture of wonder, fear and admiration as she rattled off thrilling stories of giants and faries, and he relaxed when she wheedled him to her side for the close inspection of beautiful picture books, while she petted and soothed him and stole an arm around him and pressed him tenderly to her breast. And the kisses that fell so gently on his hair and forehead and cheek, and the tender caresses of her hand as it passed from his hair to his neck and to his face and his hands, and the overwhelming flood of affection that was poured out upon him from her eyes and voice and spirit, all led him for a time away from the central thought that lay deep and strong within him.

Lacking in the finer skill of the art and being guided largely by an overmastering affection that must develop what tact it could and no design whatever, the wretched woman carried her part too far. Suddenly the former distrust and alarm returned to Master John's face and he imperiously demanded:

"Where is my muvver?"

Clarisse sank back in her chair and moaned helplessly.

"You tol' me my muvver was comin'," said Master John imperiously.

"Yes, John, that is what she told me, you know," she replied hurriedly. "Of course she has been detained." The woman turned white as she added in a voice hardly above a whisper: "If your mother doesn't come in a few minutes, your father will be here in an hour or two. I give you my word for that"

There must have been something in the woman's manner that touched the child's heart, for pity came into his eyes, and he stepped close to her and for the first time gave a demonstration of interest and sympathy. Her eyes glowed with inaffable happiness as he laid his hand in hers and said:

"I didn't mean to hurt your feelins. You know—my muvver—she's awful careful about me, and she tol me never to let any lady what I didn't know talk to me on the street"

The look of joy faded from the woman's face, but all the tenderness remained.

"John," she asked, "did she warn you against any particular woman?

"I fink," he answered thoughtfully, "she said I mustn't speak to any lady what was tall and booful an had bright black eyes."

The boy was not looking into her face just then, but was regarding her hand, which he thoughtfully stroked while striving to remember the warning he had received. Perhaps it was to hide her face that Clarisse buried it in the small shoulder of Master John and stifled her sobs, while her tears streamed down his velvet jacket.

While he was in this quiet and thoughtful mood something else came into his mind.

"What is your name?" he inquired. "I never saw you at our house."

Thereupon he tried to dislodge her face from his shoulder to make a deliberate inspection of her, but she held him all the firmer and remained concealed. She evaded his question.

They had grown much closer in spirit now. The woman's frenzy in its various forms had passed and her heart settled down into a sweet sense of the child's possession, tempered with vague, bitter reflection upon the past and future. But the sweetness of the present was sufficient, and in that her soul was bathed.

Illuminating all other feelings was her triumphant realization that in spite of all the wild and uncontrollable vagaries of her conduct that day she had achieved a long march in the conquest of the child. "I am winning him," she said over and over in her heart, "and he will love me, he will love me!"

She held him there, still keeping her face concealed, and gently leading his mind into other ways. With infinite tact and sweetness she coaxed him into talking of his own affairs, and she held herself under perfect control when he spoke of his father and mother.

Presently she became aware that darkness was falling. She released the child, lighted the rooms brilliantly and gave him an abundance of good things to eat, she joining him in the feast. Two children were never happier. The boy seemed to have forgotten all about his home in the glowing light and radience which filled the the place. Never had a companion so sparkling and charming, so various, dazzling and beautiful, appeared to his experience. Their jests and pranks and laughter were ringing at their height when the doorbell sounded. The woman quailed, shrank and turned white. She caught the child in her arms and said:

"John, your father has come."

This instantly recalled the boy from his dream.

"I want him," he eagerly said.

The woman led him into the drawing room seated him and went out and admitted three men—a detective, a policeman and Mr. John Edward Landor, capitalist and gentleman.

"Master John is here with me," the woman quietly remarked," and we have been enjoying a very delightful visit with each other. Will you enter, gentlemen? I have been expecting you. I am very sorry I have caused you any trouble, but I knew that as the trail which I always leave is very broad and easily followed, you would have little trouble in finding us. By the way Mr. Landor that intelligent nurse girl of yours is spending the day with her mother." Her laugh was hard and malicious.

"Take us to the boy, Clairisse," the detective bluntly commanded.

"By all means. Enter gentlemen."

She led them into the shining drawing room, and master John with a cry and a bound, sprang into his father's arms, where he was held strongly and securely while Mr. Landor glared savagely at the woman standing so defiant and sneering before him.

"I am greatly obliged to you gentlemen," said he to the officers and will now leave you to your duty."

The woman picked up her cars at that.

"Come, Clarisse get your hat and coat, commanded the detective.

"Why!" she exclaimed, beginning to show a fierce aspect.

"You may need them on the way to the prison."

"What am I charged with?"

"To-morrow Mr. Landor will swear to a complaint for abduction."

The woman started.

"And that means that his money and power will send me to prison."

"That is exactly what it means," remarked Mr. Landor, the coldness and hardness of his sneering mouth comporting oddly with the malignant and implicable hatred that blazed in his gray eyes. "You will be placed where you will be unable to steal my son."

"Your son! Oh, God, that is true! I did not abduct him. You dog, you coward you beast! You know I m defenseless. You know I was only exercising a right that is the most sacred on this earth."

"I suppose you have told him," Mr. Landor said.

"I have told him nothing, hound! I am not so low as that."

Her manner then suddenly underwent a change. Tears sprang to her eyes and poured down her cheeks. "Surely," she pleaded humbly, "you will not send me up. It was only a little prank, John. I couldn't help it—upon my soul. I couldn't help it. Was it not enough that you robbed me of our baby and sent me adrift an outcast? I will never speak to him again John, but will you go away to-morrow and never come back." She came near and laid one hand on his arm and the other on the shoulder of Master John. "Don't be hard on me. Remember the happy old days, John. I meant no harm."

"Gentlemen, do your duty," coldly said Mr. Landor, as he contemptuously shook the woman off and started for the door.

She stood rigid and dazed, but a strange incident revived her. Master John wriggled unexpectedly and with so much vigor that he escaped from his father's arms and ran to Clarisse, who instantly caught him up. He threw his arms around her neck and kissed her.

"You are very naughty to call my fahver a beast and a dog," he said, in a playful tone, "'cause he isn't you know."

"Yes, yes, John, I know," she responded, returning his caress a hundred-fold. "You love me, don't you, John?" she pleadingly asked.

"Oh, yes."

"Very much?"

"Oh, ever so many times much."

She threw a swift look of triumph at Mr. Landor.

"And you will always remember me and love me?"

"Yes, just as long as I live."

The agony of love that went into the kisses with which she now smothered the child may not be measured by men.

She surrendered the boy, and with a look of infinite sweetness and sadness saw him borne out of the room in the arms of his father.

"Goodby, John," she called.

"Goodby," came back with parting words in a childish voice whose music sang in her soul.

There she stood, radiant, transfixed and beautiful, the embodiment of womanly grace and loveliness. She was recalled to herself by an impatient order:

"Hurry up, Clarisse."

She started, moaned and staggered into the next room. She was heard to open a drawer, and in another moment the two officers were startled by a pistol shot. They sprang to the door.

"We are too late," said the detective.

A Farewell Service.

The Christian Endeavor society gave a farewell service on Sunday evening to Roger Bayard, who with his sister Susan, departs on Wednesday for Canton, Ohio. The service was very impressive, made so by the fact that Mr. Bayard has always been a hard and faithful worker of the society and his going away will be keenly felt by by the different Christian organizations in this city.

Exchanged Pulpits.

Revs. Gerhart and Laurie exchanged pulpits on Sunday thus giving their respective congregations an opportunity of hearing them without going to any other church.

—And still no Base Ball club in Bellefonte.

—A pocket umberella would come in rather handy during this very uncertain weather.

—An attemp at robbery was made at the home of Mrs. Louisa Bush on Spring street on Saturday night but the would-be robbers were frightened away before they could secure any booty.

—Miss Mary Bradley the new organist at St. John's Episcopal church, played her first service on Sunday. The singing gave general satisfaction which was largely due to the good music.

—The corner stone of the new Catholic church at Philipsburg was laid on Sunday. A number of prominent priests were present and assisted in the services, which were very imposing. The total cost of the church when finished will be $12,000

The Leap Year assembly given at the Armory on evening of June 25, by the young ladies of Bellefonte was a complete success in every particular. A better evening could not have been made to order, and everybody present seemed to be having a good time. There were in the dancing floor about sixty-five couples and the scene, as the dancers moved to the exceptionally good time of the music, was enchanting.

The Armory was beautifully decorated for the occasion with cut flowers, potted plants and evergreen. Everything was so conveniently and tastefully arranged that there was some place to go or something to do for those who were tired or didn't care to dance. The music was furnished by Stopper & Fisk of Williamsport and gave the best of satisfaction. The musicians were accommodating and responded liberally to many encores. It was the unanimous opinion that it was the prettiest dance ever given in Bellefonte, which reflects much credit upon the ladies in charge. No pains were spared to make it the social event of the season, and that the aim was more than reached was evinced by the many flattering comments heard upon all sides.

To the committee too much praise cannot be given, as to them is due the success of the whole affair. They were Misses Katherine C. Harris, Mildred F. Smith, Myra Holliday, Henrietta K. Butts and Elizabeth G. Muffly.

The patrons were Colonel J. L. Spangler, Captain Henry C. Quigley, Col. Wilbur F. Reeder, Ellis L. Orvis, Harry Keller, John I. Potter, J. Howard Lingle, Thomas A. Shoemaker, L. T. Munson and Dr. Geo. F. Harris.

Among the visiting guests were the following:

Miss Foster, Philad'a; Miss Hopkins, Lancaster; Miss Sudler, Philadelphia; Miss Damon, Darby; Mr. MacDade, Chester; Miss McCurdie, Williamsport; Mr. Barr and Mr. Aultz, Tyrone; Miss Harrison, Philadelphia; Miss Sides, Jersey Shore; Miss Mahaffey, Williamsport; Miss Robbins, Alabama; Miss Sharpless, Philadelphia; Miss Brisbin, Cleveland.

—Now is the time to advertise.

—Straw hats and umbrellas are going hand in hand just now.

—They say some of the girls got even with different young men at the Leap Year dance for all the slights of the past year.

—The weather has been so changeable during the past few days that it has been necessary to wear a seersucker jacket and a storm overcoat at the same time to be able to meet any emergency.

—A novel wedding ceremony was performed at Milesburg on Thursday afternoon. The contracting parties were Mr. Theodore B. Lipton of Renovo and Miss Myrtle E. Austin of Milesburg. Rev. King, pastor of the M. E. church, officiated, and the ceremony was performed in the orchard adjoining the bride's home. Later in the day the guests partook of a delicious wedding supper on the grass under the large shade trees.

—The Supreme Court has decided the case taken from Lycoming county that county commissioners are not entitled to mileage for traveling to and from their homes and the county seat. As court expressed it, if they live so far from the county seat that it is expensive for them to make the trips between that place and their home, that is a matter for them to consider before they decide to become commissioners.

Made a Costly Mistake.

Greensburg, Pa., June 26.—Joseph D. Marks, a constable at West Newton, will have to pay a large sum of money for a mistake made by him in the discharge of what he thought to be a duty. He held a writ against Cessi Helevir, of the town, and going to the premises of Helevir, the officer sold a lot of goods found there. After the sale G. Marchioni claimed the good as his own and brought suit for $3,000 damages against Marks. The jury to-day returned a verdict for $587.26.

Have you seen Mac. Laurie's new laundry wagon yet? It was built by Sam. Diehl and is indeed a beauty. Who said the laundry business isn't paying.

—Warrants will be issued by Adjutant General Stewart before the division encampment at Lewistown to the various companies of the National Guard for the first half of their annual allowance for the year ending May, 1897.

Coughs,

 Consumption.

The greatest cause of terror of the present day, formerly considered hopeless, is now conceded by the best physicians as curable under proper conditions. Its cause—a depleted condition of the system; a mal-assimilation of food; a wasting away of the tissues; an impoverishment of the blood. The result—a diseased condition of all the organs of the body; a formation of eating ulcers; and the result death from collapse or hemorrhage. But the cure is that greatest concentration into the least possible bulk of the vital elements of lean, raw beef. It is absorbed and nourishes with the least possible effort on the part of the stomach. It creates new tissue, enriches the blood, makes flesh, and by strengthening the great vital centres of the body enables them to perform their functions in a natural manner, and dispel disease. Thousands owe their life to its use.

Clearfield Primaries

Dubois, Pa. June 26.—The republicans of Clearfield county will hold their primary election to-morrow afternoon. Owing to the number of candidates for assembly, trrasurer and commissioner, the contest is keen and has given rise to considerable factional feeling. The following is the ticket: For Congress, W. C. Arnold of Dubois; assembly, two to elect, Joseph Alexander of Maderia, William I. Swoope of Clerrfield, John H. Patchin, of Patchinville, Charles D. Ames of Hyletown, Fred Schofield of Dubois. For county treasurer. D. D. Gingery of Woodland, Lewis C. Dyer of Osceola Mills, W. C. Goss of Woodward township, R. Wils. McNail of Curwensville, H. W. Mattern of Decatur township, C. P. Rowles, of Oshanter William M. Potter, of Chester Hill. For county commissioner, two to elect, A. E. Woolridge of Woodland, John A. Shreck of Kylertown, James Hile of Dubois, T. N. Fulton of Lawrence township, B. F. Harley of Rochton, W. C. Davis of Houtsdale. For county auditor two to elect, John H. Martin of Clearfield, addition to the above, 104 delegates will be elected to the county convention, which meets at Clearfield on June 30, and one member of the county committee from each of the sixty-nine voting precincts.

Worked Ridgway Lodges.

Ridgway lodge men have been swindled by album sharks. A few weeks ago a young fellow, with a slick tongue, canvassed the lodges with a large sample album. Orders were taken from several members, each of whom agree to take one dozen cabinets, one of which was to go into the album when purchased by the lodge and the other eleven were to be kept by the subscriber. The solicitor or a companion collected all the money they could and then left, stating that another agent would follow them with the albums and photos and would then pay all bills left by the solicitors. Of course the third party didn't show up and a number of Ridgway men are out the amounts they paid the solicitors. One of the solicitors was arrested a few days ago.

Cyclist Conspirators.

"It's not dark enough yet," she whispered, as she peered eargerly up and down the street.

"There's no one in sight," he replied, after a careful survey.

"But some one may come around the corner at any minute and recognize us, and then I should want to die."

"Well, then, we'll wait a bit"

What dreadful deed did these two contemplate committing?

He was only about to give her the first lesson in riding a bicycle.

—About $79 were cleared at the Y. M. C. A. concert on Friday evening.

—A pretty wedding was that on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. Heaton at Bush's Addition. The contracting parties were Green Heaton and Miss Kate Noll. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. C. Miller.

—About twenty people from this city drove to the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Miller in Benner township on Friday evening and there sat down to a feast that was far above the ordinary banquet dinner. It was the occasion of a meeting of the daughters of the Revoluiton and for politeness' sake they took their husbands with them. The party returned later in the evening and all report having had a royal time.

A case of small-pox has been reported to the Shamokin health authorities. The victim is a Polish woman, who came several days ago.

Be True to Yourself.

There are very many boys, who start to learn a trade or business, who have very little knowledge of themselves or of the true purpose of life. They mistake trickery and deceit for genuis and talent. They are apt to think, if, by adroitness and disregard of the truth occasionally, they can make others think they are accomplishing considerable, they have done much to establish a reputation for smartness. Better bear in mind one thing boys, you may not appear to advance so rapidly at first as some others if you are painstaking and accurate, but habits of care and accuracy will become a practical matter in all your business life and the satisfaction will come to you from the knowledge of being able to master your business will more than pay you for the labor and pains you have expended.

The boy in the printing office who is careless about distributing will make slow progress in his composition. If he think it smart to slily drop a word of italic into a wrong case rather than distribute it in the proper one he will soon find himself without a position. No one is less needed about a well-ordered printing office than a mischievous, slovenly boy. If there was any reasonable hopes that such traits would end with his apprenticeship there would be some hope for the boy, but the habits we form in our youth are very apt to fix themselves upon us, and as we grow older they become fixed principles which are hard to lay aside, if indeed we can overcome them at all.

If we do not master habits they will master us, and when once that is the case we become slaves of the worst class. No boy who has any hope to succeed can afford to be conquered by even one bad habit, for sooner or later he will find himself the slave not only of one but too many habits which will fix themselves upon him and rule him with a heavy hand.

There is nothing more essential to the success of a young man beginning a business than to pay strict attention to detail. First master the fundamental principles of the business you engage in and all the rest will be comparatively easy. The boy who enters the carpenter's shop and attempts to saw a board or hew a piece of timber, and pays little or no attention to the line drawn for him to work to, but leaves much to be done to the one whose duty it is to finish the work will never rise above a certain plane in the business. He will always be a second-rate workman and command second-rate pay.

The apprentice of the printing business who is careless about his work, slovenly about his habits, doing only what he feels obliged to in order to fill the time he is required to work, will be far better at work on the publicstreets than in the office for he will never amount to much in the one and will be less in the way on the other

Those boys who are not afraid of work whether it be to sweep the office, sort pi, count papers, wash rollers, clean the machines, run the press, or set type, and do it cheerfully, as though it was a pleasure to perform any duty, are the boys who both learn the secret of successful business life and are able to fill the highest and best positions in the trade. They are not oblighed to search for work from place to place.

They are princes of the trade. They are the autocrats of business. There has been a limited or confined education in one particular division of the trade, but by close attention, studious habits, careful and painstaking application to labor and the minor details, as well as the more general affairs of the business they are masters of the whole, and like a general in command in an army they are able to overlook the whole field, and counsel or command for the best interest of all.

These are the boys who develop into the best men of the land, who become the leaders in thought and all great movements for the building up of the nation. They are the true men whose acquaintance is desired, whose counsel is praised and whose words are full of wisdom. They are the trusted men of the age in which they live. The law of God is their guide; justice and truth are the foundations on which they build. They are true to God, true to themselves, and true to their fellow men, and because they honor God he crowns them with honors, and sets them in the chief seats of the people. They occupy no low or cramped position, but stand at the head, masters among the masters.

What say you boys and girls in every trade? Have you ever thought you were born for something more than a machine to be guided and moved at the will of others? Be true to yourselves and seek for the highest attainments to be found and bring every good thing within your reach into service for your best interest. Be honest and true in everything. Fear nothing but wrong and your life experience will become luminous with good.—The Dawn.

A Qualified Victory.

"What's the matter, Jack? You don't behave like a man who has just become engaged to a lovely girl—smoking all day and pretending to read instead of finishing your picture for the academy."

"Oh, what's the use? The fellow I cut out is on the hanging committee."—Pearson's Weekly.

JAMES RINE TALKS.

Everybody Knows Him.—Everybody Believes Him in Bellefonte.

As you lean back in your chair with your feet on the fender and peruse your evening paper, you must be amazed at the columns devoted to advertising patent medicines, the schemes employed to bring the remedies before the readers notice and the ingenuity displayed in wording testimonials so as to make them conform to the advertised claims. The tongue runs glibly over half a column of introductory matter and then as a rule, winds up with the gist of some testimonial received from a sufferer of some malady. Read them carefully and notice this, Chicago and St Louis examples do duty in New York. Calafornia residents flit before Maine citizens in regular succession like the connected scenes in a Panorama. Is it not hard to indorse an act performed in some far away hamlet even if embellished with all the adjectives that the Anglo Saxon language can furnish. Reverse the case and read the testimony of Mr. Jas. Rine 2 Thomas St. The impression left is convincing, conclusive. Says he: "My trouble in the back started from a slight strain. It developed into a urinary difficulty, the most marked being an excessive desire to urinate, particularly at night. My back hurt to stoop, to straighten up and if I made any awkward or unthought of move I always got a reminder in the shape of a sharp, piercing twinge. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for it at Green's Pharmacy. They cured me. I am pleased at the result, for one year of it is as long as any man cares to stand of Kidney complaint."

Sunday at the Tabernacle.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin says: Sunday was a day of large crowds and great success at the great tabernacle. More than thirty persons arose and requested prayer, and fifteen of these afterwards went forward and declared their intention to begin a new life with Christ as their leader.

The afternoon meeting for men only was a most successful one from every standpoint. About 700 were present, Mr. Weaver preached with wonderful power. He spoke in detail of five things which lead men astray, the most prominent of which are the love of money, wine and women. At the conclusion about 500 men arose and declared their intention of living a better life, and about twenty five requested special prayer. The same kind of a meeting will be held next Sunday, when the subject, 'A gang of robbers," will be continued.

The evening meeting saw the largest crowd yet present. Every seat was occupied, and large crowds collected on either side and on both ends of the tent. Hundreds were turned away. The song service conducted by Mr. Weeden, was unusually good, the vast audience taking hold of the singing in a wonderful manner. The sermon on the subject "Eternity" was a magnificent effort, and held the attention of the great crowd to the last word. The workers are much encouraged by the result, and begin the week's work with renewed zeal.

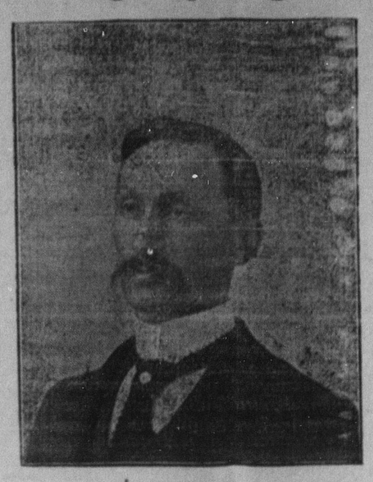
Chas. P. Long, Spring Mills, Pa.



The above is a cut of Mr C. P. Long of Spring Mills, candidate before the late Republican convention for the nomination for treasurer. This cut and the following brief sketch of his early career were obtained by the newspaper for publication in the evening previous to the meeting of the convention when the outlook made it almost certain that he would be the successful candidate. But subsequent proceedings proved the fallacy of "coming events cast their shadows before."

Charles P. Long is entirely a self made man. He was not born of the wealthy to give him prominence, his parents were not of the affluent to give him a commending position, but rather of the humble and not helped with this worlds superabundance, yet held in high esteem by the community. The writer will remember Mr. Long in his early youth, a mere child you may say, and even at that early age, when not attending school his studies instead of books consisted of toil and care, not like other lads of his years, he was rarely found at play or idling in the town stores his leisure was only another name for toil. When about 15 years of age, he embarked in a trifling business in a small room located on the pike a short distance below Spring Mills, here he commenced business with a stock of candies valued at less than one dollar. But in this little shop he laid the foundation for his subsequent successful business career. Mr. Long is a striking example of what can be accomplished by perseverance, and a laudable ambition on arriving at his majority. Mr. Long allied himself to the grand old Republican party, and ever since has acted and been an unflinching advocate of its policy and principles. At the late convention he was the youngest man on the list of candidates for any of the nomination, and unquestionably the most popular gentleman in Penns valley, and it might be added, is the best known young men in Centre county. On the Monday evening previous to the meeting of the convention it was generally understood that he would be the nominee for treasurer, which fact had been telegraphed to the Philadelphia Press and published in their addition on Tuesday morning However later on Monday evening, it was evident from the information received at head quarters that A. V. Miller of College township would be nominated for sheiriff. This new and rather extraordinary term of affairs, of course precluded Mr. Long's nomination af their townships run pretty close together and it was deemed unwise to nominate both gentleman and therefore Mr. Long was, so to speak, set aside.

It will be observed that Mr. Long went into the convention with the remarkable strength of twenty delegates, remarkable from the fact that he was surrounded and completely hemmed in on all sides by prominent and able candidates and had only the fag end—a small portion of the county, to operate in, and this following he firmly held not losing a delegate in a single instance, but increased it to thirty votes on the 7th ballot when he dropped out, and on the 8th ballot Mr. Kline received the nomination. Had the delegates acted on first impression, when their own candidate dropped out having voted for the weakest candidate then remaining which customary, instead of every time for the strongest, in all probability Mr. Long would now be the nominee of the Republican party for treasurer of Centre county.

But notwithstanding his defeat, Mr. Long accepts the vertict of the republican convention and will give hearty and cordial support to his successful rival as he will to the whole ticket, and will urge all his friends to do all they can to make the victory in Centre county this fall overwhelming and complete. "A long pull, a strong pull and a pull a together," is what Mr. Long, desires that our victory may be complete, and the writer hopes that every defeated candidate, and every republican will give as cordial support to the ticket this fall, as Mr. Long will do. He is a Republican, has the success of the party at heart, and is as anxious for the success of the ticket, as though his name were upon it.

Reading Notice.

Thirty years continuous practice of Medicine and Surgery, almost a lifetime, such is the record of Dr. Henry W. Lobb, of Philadelphia. During all these years he has treated many prominent people, coming from all parts of the globe. His reputation for cures of private diseases after all others have failed is known the world over His success is due entirely to his thorough knowledge and litelong existence. Those suffering from indiscretions are speedily and soundly cured, and made bodily strong and vigorous, giving renewed youth and feeling to the rundown and infirm. He is the only genuine Specialist in Philadelphia. Many have imitated him, but last for a few years and only drop out of existence. Dr. Lobb is in thorough health and feels that for thirty years more to come, he will continue curing thousands of people of blood poison and neglect, nervous debility and general weakness, giving in all cases a guarantee of a permanent cure. All sufferers should send for his great book of 208 pages, cloth-bound. It is sent free, describing all diseases. Address

That

Extreme tired feeling afflicts nearly everybody at this season. The hustlers cease to push, the tireless grow weary, the energetic become enervated. You know just what we mean. Some men and women endeavor temporarily to overcome that

Tired

Feeling by great force of will. But this is unsafe, as it pulls powerfully upon the nervous system, which will not long stand such strain. Too many people "work on their nerves," and the result is seen in unfortunate wrecks marked "nervous prostration," in every direction. That tired should be possessed of certain information without which millions contract pernicious and most destructive habits—habits which make young men prematurely aged, pale, haggard, listless, devoid of ambition, easily tired, languid, forgetful and incapable; fill mad-houses and swell the list of suicides; separate husbands and wives, bring untold suffering to millions, even unto the third fourth generations. Parents, gaurdians and philanthropists can do no better service to the rising generation, than to place in their hands the information and warnings contained in a little book carefully prepared by an association of medical men who have had vast experience in dealing with the grave maladies here hinted at, and who feel that they owe it to humanity to warn the young of the land against certain destructive habits which are far more prevalent than can be imagined by any layman, and which if persisted in gradually undermine the constitution and health and destroy the future happiness of the victim. Cut out this notice and enclose it with ten cents in stamps (to pay postage) to World Dispensary Medical Association, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo N.Y. and the book will be sent, secure from observation in a plain sealed envelope.

Out-door Sports

The hardy, strong, athletic man, after enjoying the sports of out-door life, feel all the better, although he may have suffered as many do, from serious sprains and bruises. If sports were stopped on that account, we would have no more of the great base ball games, sports of field and turf, of oar and gun, of rod and racquet, but all sportsmen and athletes take sprains and bruises as an accompaniament with composure, because they know how easy and certain it is to use St. Jacobs Oil and get rid of permanently the worst forms of any such accidents. There may be some, indeed many, not quite up to date in being prepared for the season's enjoyment and such should undoubtedly have a supply of this great remedy for pain.

—A pretty wedding was that at Howard on Wednesday afternoon. The contracting parties were Mr. John Lyons of Spring township and Miss Clara Sunday of this city. Rev. Forest performed the ceremony.

Applied directly to the inflamed membrane, it restores it to its healthy condition, affording quick relief and a cure after short continuance.

A Year in the Mines.

The Department of the Interior has issued its annual report of the mineral products for the past year, and the showing is the best ever made, except in the years of 1890, 1891 and 1892. The entire value of the minerals produced in 1895 reaches the enormous total of $611,796,290. First of all in importance is soft coal, which amounted to $115,749,000. Pennsylvania anthracite was valued at $82,000,000. Pig iron ranked next to soft coal, passing above $105,000,000 in value. These three Pennsylvania productions far outranked silver at $60,000,000, and gold at $47,000,000, while petroleum oil out distanced gold, the oil product amounting to $57,000,000.

Pennsylvania is easily the foremost of all mineral producing States of the Union her coal alone surpassing all the gold and silver of the whole nation, while the Pennsylvania from output is without a really good second. Probably it is safe to say that, including pig iron, coal oil natural gas, and her smaller mineral contributions, Pennsylvania produced considerably more than half as much of the mineral wealth as all of the rest of the United States combined. With Ohio the amount runs up to probably half of all that is produced by the whole nations. Yet the little States of the Rocky Mountains volume themselves on their mineral output, and ask to dictate the policy of the government because of their small addition to its wealth.

Big as is the value of the mineral production of the United States old Agaicola, the farmer, still lays it out completely. The hay crop itself is worth more money in a year than all the minerals produced.—Pittsburg Times.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE.

Death of the Woman Who Wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Hartford, Conn., July 1.—Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, the authoress of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and other works of world-wide reputation, died at noon to-day without regaining consciousness. She passed peacefully away, as though into a deep sleep. The body will be taken to Andover, Mass., on Friday. The burial will be in the cemetery connected with the Andover Theological seminary, where her husband, Professor Calvin E. Stowe and her son Henry, are buried.

Harriet Elizabeth Beecher Stowe was born at Litchfield, Conn., June 14, 1811. Her father was the famous Dr. Lyman Beecher, and her brother, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. One of her earliest efforts in authorship was a short story called "Uncle Lot," for which she won a prize of $50 in 1832. In January, 1836, she was married to Professor C. E. Stowe, professor of sacred literature of Lane Theological seminary, which institution later became a hotbed of slavery abolition.

It was in 1852 that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was completed by Mrs. Stowe. For the serial she received $300, but when it was later published in book form she received within four months royalties amounting to $10,000 and made herself the most talked of woman in the world. The money, coming as it did, was the mainstay of the Stowe family, for the household exchequer had fallen very low, owing to Professor Stowe's physical condition.

There have been nineteen translations of the book and its dramatization has been seen on the stage of many countries. The full list of her publications numbers 32 volumes, among which are Dred, a Tale of the Dismal Swamp, and The Minister's Wooing. Her sole editorial experience was on the Hearth and Home, in New York city.

$175.00 in Gold Given

International News and Book Co., Baltimore, Md., are making a most liberal offer of $175.00 to any agent who will sell 90 copies in two months of their new book "Under Both Flags," or a gold watch for selling 40 copies in one month. This premium is in addition to commission. Graphic and thrilling adventures of the Civil War,—both sides. Every word written by eye witnesses. Stories of camp fires, comradeship, deeds of daring, anecdotes, etc. Hundreds of war pictures. One agent reports 25 copies sold in two days, another agent 42 in four days. Complete $1.00 outfit sent for 50 cents in stamps. Write them immediately. Freight paid and credit given. This is a splendid opportunity for students and teachers during their summer vacation.

Stokley—"I met Gibson in Chicago. He spoke of you."

Brokley—"Indeed, he remembered you then?"

"Oh yes; said he would never forget me."

"Then you owe him money, too?"

Note of Warning.

Indigestion produces inflamation and ulceration of the stomach, and these are the exciting cause of so many deaths from cancer of the stomach. South American Nervine is the most momentous cure for stomach troubles the world ever saw. There is no case of indigestion and stomach weakness which it will not cure. A sound stomach is never affected by cancerous growths. Seve yourself by using this renowned cure which never disappoints. Sold by F. P. Green druggist, Bellefonte, Pa. 129-1y.

John Woomer, Sr., of Tyrone, is a claimant for nearly a hundred million dollars worth of Washington property. This property, he claims, embraces the United States Mint, the Washington Monument and the National Museum of History. The property was left to Henry Pool and his heirs, forever, the donor being George Washington. If Mr. Woomer gets possession of the Washington Mounment it is hardly possible that he will move it off his premises.

Judge—You are accused of having stolen a whole cake from the back kitchen of Mrs. Newwed; what have you to say for yourself?

Prisoner—Your Honor, nobody else would have eaten it.

KILLED A BURGLAR.

A Western Relative of One of Our Citizens Had a Thrilling Experience.

The following is clipped from the Lake Charles, La., Daily Press under date of June 20. It is the account of the killing of a burglar by Mr. Herman Rock. Mr. Rock is a second nephew of our esteemed townsman Rev. J. P. Hughes, and this fact makes the article interesting to our readers. It is as follows:

About twelve o'clock the ordinarily quiet section of the city in the vicinity of the residence of Mr. Geo. Horridge, on Pujo street, was startled by the loud report of a revolver, followed a moment later by two other discharges. At two o'clock this morning policeman Miller found in a vacant lot opposite the residence of A. M. Mayo the body of negro, subsequently learned to be George Ledoux, alias George Neiro, with a ghastly bullet hole in his neck.

The Horridge family are in the north spending the summer at Vinton, Iowa, and the house is occupied at night by Mr. Herman Rock, who has sleeping apartments in the upper story. Mr. Rock uses the east room as a dressing room and a room across a hall for a sleeping room.

At midnight he was awakened by noise evidently made by some person in the opposite room. He grasped his revolver, a 38-calibre Smith-Wesson, and listened until he located the direction of the noise, and opened the door. The supposition is that the burglar supposed the house was vacant, as he made no attempt to conceal his movements. An electric street lamp stood on the opposite corner, and by its light, upon opening the door Mr. Rock saw the form of a short, thick set man in the shadow. He could not tell if the trespasser was white or black. The man was standing by a dressing case, and Mr. Rock said "What do you want?" Receiving no answer he threw his gun down and pulled the trigger, at the same time jumping behind the door to avoid a return shot. As the report sounded through the house the man escaped to the hall door, thence upon the upper gallery and jumped off. Mr. Rock sprang to the gallery after him and fired a second shot as the man picked himself up from the ground. The fellow ran around the corner of the house, when Mr. Rock fired the third shot.

The shooting aroused the neighborhood, and several gentlemen at once went to the house. It was found the screen door of the upstairs hallway, opening upon the gallery, had been cut. Blood was found in pools in the room where the man stood and on the gallery over which he jumped, showing he had been hard hit. The premises were thoroughly searched and the body found as stated.

The dead burglar was nineteen years of age and a little over five feet tall. He arrived here last Christmas upon completing a two years' sentence in the state penitentiary for breaking into the residence of Mr. J. G. Powell. He is known as a natutal criminal, and is thought by Sheiff Lyons to be the man who assaulted two ladies with bricks some time ago. The sheriff has been closely investigating him, and was in hopes of connecting him with that crime. Neiro, or Ledoux, is unquestionably associated with recent house burglary. On his person was found a silver tag marked "M. G. L.," and which is the property of Mrs. Loxley, whose house was entered some nights since. A World's Fair souvenir, the property of Express Agent Webster, was also found in his pockets.

Mr. Rock has served society a good turn by his expert marksmanship. The man who enters a house to rob will take human life every time if he has opportunity, and any man is justified in shooting such a person every time he can get the drop.

The Fatal Gasoline.

Philadelphia, July 2.—By the explosion of a gasoline lamp this morning in a pool room at 305 Green street, three people were burned, two of them fatally. Wm. Einstein, owner of the place, and Jacob Rudolph, aged 15 years, were covered with the burning fluid and so badly burned they cannot live. Benjamin Rudolph, aged 18 years, brother of Jacob, was severely burned and was also injured by jumping from a second-story window.

IRON AND STEEL.

Fairly Active in Some Lines, But Less in Others.

Pittsburg, July 2.—The American Manufacturer, in its edition to-morrow, will say concerning the iron and steel trade:

'Trade is as dull as ever if not worse,' is the statement heard on all sides by inquirers into the condition of the Pittsburg iron and steel market this week. In some lines there is still considerable activity and the outlook is fairly good, but generally the trade is showing less life than it did a few weeks ago. The financial and political situation seems to be given the credit for this condition of things, and it is generally conceded that they may be worse before they are better. It is evident that industrial operations are to be further curtailed, owing to the uncertainty of future conditions. The usual summer dullness seems to have set in very early and the mills are taking any length of time for repairs. In addition to this labor difficulties have arisen in some quarters which have closed a number of mills that would have continued operations had prospects been more encouraging. In the midst of all, however, prices hold their own. A few lines show slightly lower figures, but, on the whole; prices are holding very well considering all circumstances.

What to Read.

Read history. It is the history of the progress of human life. It teaches by example and stimulates to endeavor.

Read poetry. It enriches the mind with ideals that may become real.

Read romance. The examples of its heroes are an exaltation, and tend to the formation of noble character.

Read science. It supplies information that equips for usefulness and prevents the triumph of error.

Read philosophy. It imparts wisdom to consider all things and fortitude to endure all things.

Read the Bible. It gives promise of the future and strengthens the soul.

The Nebraska "Tide Wells."

In Polk county, Neb., and in some of the adjoining counties they have a queer lot of wells. They are called 'tide wells' because of a peculiar habit their waters have of ebbing and flowing just as if they were connected with a great underground ocean. Polk county alone has between 12 and 20 of these queer roaring wells.

The Saddle Question.

Shows pelvis as it rests on the ordinary saddle.

This is an illustration of the old style saddle. If you will observe it carefully you will note that it fits like a glove (and a saddle should not). It presses the sensitive parts, causes soreness, stiffness and chafing, and has made cycling to a certain extent injurious, because few could enjoy a long ride without fear of injury.

All this is now changed. Here is represented the perfect saddle—the Christy Anatomical Saddle, showing the pelvis as it rests on the pads. The Christy Anatomical Saddle is the only saddle that is built right. Made of metal, of light weight, cannot warp or change its shape, has pads that rest the entire body, does not press the sensitive parts, prevents stiffness, and makes cycling a pleasure.

Shows pelvis as it rests on the Christy Saddle.

—An incident that recalls the cause of the Chicago fire occurred near Shade Gap, Huntingdon county, a few nights ago. Samuel Linn, a farmer, hearing a noise in his barn, went out with a lantern to ascertain the cause, and found one of his horses with its foot over the halter strap. He hung his lantern on a harness pin, and tried to remove the strap, when the horse kicked and struck the lantern and it exploded, scattering the oil in every direction and setting the barn on fire. Mr. Linn got his live stock out, but all the contents were consumed.

—A wise exchange says: Every town in Pennsylvania should have its stone pile for petty criminals and tramps. It would contribute toward improved road construction and at the same time be wholesome discipline for them and free the state from the wandering tramps who disturb the tranquility of country life and whose worthless lives are a heavy tax on the community. The tramp is a grievous and growing evil, but not a necessary one. Enforced work will cure it. Establish the stone pile and the tramp will flee from its presence as from a pestilence. In this particular reform Delaware sets an example that Pennsylvania may well follow.

Death of a Prominent and at One Time a Bellefonte Physician

The following notices are self explanatory. They narrate death of Dr. Robert D. Tipple, a former Bellefonte physician who died at Toledo Ohio on June 24.

Deceased was an uncle of the late Dr. Dartt of this place and the latter studied medicine in the office in this city for a number of years.

"Dr. Robert D. Tipple, a well-known resident of Toledo, died at his residence, 324 Eighteenth St. His death was not wholly unexpected, as he had been in poor health for some time."

"He leaves a wife and five children, but one of whom, Mrs. W. W. Walker, of Duluth, Minn., is married."

"The funeral will be held from the family residence at 10 a. m. Saturday, and the interment will be made in Woodlawn cemetery."

"The doctor was a native of Vernon, N. Y., where he was born about sixty years ago. He read medicine and graduated from Hahnemann Medical college of Philadelphia. His life study had been largely devoted to cancer and diseases of the eye and ear. He had been a resident of this city twelve years and enjoyed the respect of a large circle of acquaintances. He was identified with the National Union Royal Arcanum and Knights of honor, carrying full policies of insurance in each."

"Neath the last rays of the setting sun yesterday afternoon all that was mortal of of Dr. R. D. Tipple was laid to rest in Woodlawn cemetery. Though so long expected, death came as it always does with a shock at the end and the sorrowing family have the widespread sympathy of a community."

"At a called meeting of the Homoepathic staff held at Dr. Maxwell's office last evening the following resolutions were adopted relative to the death of Dr. Tipple which occurred on the 24:

"Whereas—It has pleased Almighty God in his wise providence to take out of this world the soul of our deceased brother, we therefore commend him to the loving mercy of the Great Physician of souls, before whom all must appear at the great day of judgement."

"Resolved—That we hereby place upon record our great grief and sense of loss both as individual and members of our profession. May his example as a citizen and zeal in profession stimulate us to a more earnest performance of our duty."

"Resolved—That these minutes be spread upon the minutes of this association and that copies be sent to the press and to the bereaved family of the deceased."

Trustees' Meeting.

A meeting of the Trustees of the Bellefonte Academy was held at the Academy Building at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon The meeting was largely attended and the greatest of interest manifested by all present. The work of the school year just closed was carefully reviewed and showed it to have been the most successful year in the history of the Academy. John Blanchard and Harry Keller were elected members of the executive committee and Geo. L. Potter was elected a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of E. C. Humes. Rev. J. P. Hughes and Prof. J. R. Hughes were re-elected principal and associate principal respectively. Miss Reed and Miss Overton will both be back next year and the prospects are that the coming year will be even more successful than the one just closed which was probably the most successful in the history of the school in every way. The increase in the primary department has been some thing wonderful. Owing to the large number of pupils in this department it will be necessary to have a larger room and the trustees decided to have the Calisthemic Hall—the best room in the building—devoted to this purpose Other improvements will be made in the near future.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH.

Young Man Badly Injured at Hecla Park on Saturday.

Elias Dunkle, aged about sixteen years, met with an accident at Hecla Park on Saturday afternoon which might have cost him his life. As it was he escaped with injuries which are very painful and from which it will be some time before he will be fully recovered.

Young Dunkle was sitting on a fence watching the men making the arrangements preparatory to putting up the balloon. Two large poles were standing in the ground and were fastened by guy ropes. They were to be used in making the ascension and were to guide the balloon until it had reached a certain distance in the air. In some way the poles were severely jarred and before anybody could secure them they toppled over and fell upon the ground. The one fell towards the fence where Dunkle was sitting and before he could get away it struck him on the head, rendering him unconscious. He was picked up and at first it was thought he was dead, but signs of life were soon noticed and he was carried to a house nearby and medical aid summoned. An examination revealed the fact that his jaw was fractured in two places, but beyond this and severe bruises he was uninjured. At the latest reports to-day the unfortunate young man was much better and was on the way to a speedy recovery. Dunkle is the same fellow that has met with a number of thrilling adventures lately. Only a year ago a church fell on him and he escaped unhurt.

Receiving Congratulations.

Rudolph Schad, the popular young plumber, is without doubt the happiest man in town and is going about his business to-day as happy as a lark. His joy is well founded, as on Sunday evening a great big bouncing baby boy made his appearance and as a result there is great rejoicing in the Schad household. It tips the scales at exactly 14 pounds and is as pretty as a picture, With the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Schad, we hereby join in extending our heartiest congratulations.

Will Resign.

Immediately after returning from camp this month, H. C. Quigley will resign as captain of Company "B," 5th Regiment. This move is necessitated by Captain Quigley's increasing law practice. First Lieutenant G. L. Jackson is an applicant for Brigade Commisary with the title of Major on General Wiley's Staff. If he secures the appointment it will thus make two commissioned vacancies in company B. It is impossible at this time to tell who will be chosen to fill the vacancies, as according to Sergeant Alexander's views, there are at least fifty-five applicants.

Across Niagara on a Wire.

J. E. Hardy, a high wire performer, made the trip across the Niagara gorge on a three-quarter inch wire rope on Thursday afternoon. The wire was strung across south of the railway suspension bridge below the falls and was 160 feet above the water. Thousands of people lined the bridge and banks.

It is a neat volume of 600 pages and contains over one hundred beautiful and well toned illustrations. It deals with both parties and is unbiased from beginning to end. It sells for the extremely low price of $1.50 thus making it within the reach of every body. It is handsomely bound, is printed in large type on good book paper and is worth many times its advertised price.

DE THAT BUFFALO RUN.

A Prominent Man Dies After but a Week's Illness.

A sad death was that of John B. Mattern of Buffalo Run Post office, who died this morning at 4 o'clock after an illness of but ten days. Mr. Mattern was at Tyrone about a week ago when he was taken ill with stomach trouble and early this morning the death angel stole in and claimed as its victim, a man whose place will always remain vacant.

Deceased was a highly respected citizen of Buffalo Run and was aged about 70 years at the time of his death. He had been Post Master for thirty years and at all times commanded the respect and esteem of every one with whom he came in contact. Four sons survive viz., J. C. Mattern, of Scotia; Crider of Martha Lynn who lives at home and Dr. S. G. of Philadelphia. He was a brother of Mrs C. D. Crider of this city. The funeral will be held on Thursday and interment will be made at Gray's cemetery.

Soon to Organize.

There was quite a large gathering of Tennis enthusiasts at the public school grounds on Thursday evening. The object of meeting there at that time was to see whether or not the Tennis club could be revived. The greatest of interest was manifested by all present and there is every indication that the movement will come to a successful termination.

No organization was effected at the meeting, but this will in all probability be done at an early date. Plans for the advancement of the sport and repairing of the grounds were fully discussed, and many excellent ideas were brought out, which, if put into effect, cannot help but bring good results. One Tennis Court has already been put into shape for playing and as it becomes necessary, the others will also be fixed up. There were last year fully fifty members on the club roll and the indications are that there will be even more than that this year. Under such bright prospects there is every reason to believe that Tennis will be actively revived during the next thee months.

Those in charge are straining every nerve to put the courts in condition for playing at once and it is to be hoped they will receive the necessary aid to complete the work. If this is given, it will be but a short time until there will be in this city four of the finest courts to be found anywhere in the state. It will take work, however, and the other members should not stay in the background, but should lend their presence and aid in building up a Tennis association which will not only be a credit to the town but an honor to each one whose name appears on its roll.

Dig down to the cause of your sickness if you want to get well and stay well. Most likely its indigestion. The irritating poisons of fermenting putrid food, left in the stomache by indigestion, cause headache, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, stomachache, nausea, irritability and all other well known symptoms of indigestion. They also cause many pains and disorders which are often laid to other causes and hence are not easily cured. But as soon as the poisons are removed all these symptoms and disorders disappear, because there is nothing left to cause them. Nothing succeds in this like Shakers Digestive Cordial because it prevents the undigested food from fermenting in the stomache, and helps the stomache to digest its food. A New Bankruptcy Bill.

The passage of the pending bankruptcy bill by the house reminds me of an incident under the old bankruptcy law, said Albert E Hamilton of Springfield, Ills., at the Raleigh "One of the leading attorneys of Springfield was visited by a German who was reputed to be quite wealthy.

'I want to know about dot bankruptcy,' he said.

'The attorney was surprised, but explained the procedure.

'I must pay 30 per cent, aind't it?" inquired the client.

"Yes."

Well, go ahead.

A schedule of assets and liabilities was made out, the proceedings were instituted and in a few months the man entered the lawyer's office determined upon revenge.

You said I must pay 30 per cent! he exclaimed. Dose officers soldt mine farm und horses und mine house und pay demselves vat dey please, pay efery tollar I owed und get me twenty tousand tollars, all de e was left, ven I vas vorth a hundred tousand tollars if I vas vorth a cent. Explanations were useless, and it is safe to say, the former bankrupt will not try it under the new law.—Washington Star.
